MYSELF

I have to live with myself, and so I want to be fit for myself to know. I want to be able as the days go by Always to look myself straight in the eye; I don't want to stand with the setting sun And hate myself for the things I have done.

I don't want to keep on a closet shelf A lot of secrets about myself, And fool myself, as I come and go, Into thinking that nobody else will know The kind of a man I really am; I don't want to dress myself up in sham.

I want to go out with my head erect, I want to deserve all men's respect; But here in the struggle for fame and pelf I want to be able to like myself. I don't want to look at myself and know That I'm bluster and bluff and empty show.

I never can hide myself from me, I see what others may never see, I know what others may never know, I never can fool myself, and so, Whatever happens, I want to be Self-respecting, and conscience free.

Preaching Repentance Has the American pulpit failed? It is true that statistics show a growth in church membership that is encouraging. But when we look at the racketeering, the breaking down of men honored and trusted, we are led to believe that organized religion has failed. If education has failed, our educators must carry the responsibility. If organized religion has failed, the pulpit in no small way must be to blame.

This has forcefully been brought to mind by an editor of a Methodist publication of the South reported in the Christian Advocate. Discussing the senatorial inquiry into the operations of the House of Morgan and other New York bankers, he points out that these men and their favorites are members of the church. What have their pastors been preaching? Fine sermons no doubt, but largely on social subjects that do not jolt their hearers too much. Have these big men of finance been told about the obligations of wealth and its extremely dangerous possibilities? "Why in the world do these men not repent and straighten out instead of attempting to explain and make alibis? Why do they not just plainly say they were wrong and ask the country for a chance to prove a change of heart and method?" His inference is that they have little heard the challenging message of such prophets as Amos and Hosea, Jeremiah and Isaiah, and of the four gospels.

This fearless editor then challenges his brethren to restudy these messages of old with their timeless principles and applicability to the problems of today, and to preach ringing sermons on sin and repentance. "Sin has changed its form and is hiding itself behind good form, and clothing itself in respectability. The gospel of repentance is a much needed gospel right now." Rugged preachers are needed today as much as in the time of John the Baptist, who will bring sinners in high places to cry, "What shall we do?" and who, as fearlessly as did John, shall tell them what to do.

As preachers in our own pulpits, we may not have men of great wealth and high position in our pews, but always we have men and women who must meet temptation. It is ours to preach a gospel of no uncertain sound -warning men of sin, and calling them to repentance. They need sympathy and help. But a man who is desperately sick needs a physician who will tell him the truth about his condition and who will be able to prescribe the right remedy. Physicians of men's souls must be equally honest and tell the offender that sin is his trouble, repentance the only remedy, and Jesus Christ the only cure. Are we preaching on sin and repentance as faithfully as we ought? If not the pulpit is failing.

Unwanted Youth? One of the most pathetic aspects of the colossal economic break-down is that recovery will never restore the man of fifty to regular employment. An even more serious aspect is the unemployment of youth in the years when habits of reliability are formed. The roads full of young "hitch hikers" looking for a job or out simply "going somewhere" bring this phase of our social chaos to attention.

From the term of a full college course, now, graduates of our higher institutions of learning have been turned out with the prospect of entering no field of service-to swell the ranks of the unemployed. Of our own colleges, some graduates have planned to con-to greater zeal. Here is the task of ending tinue preparation elsewhere, a few have obmisery and want; the task of doing righteoustained some employment, but the many are faced with a burden of debt and no place in ly, of destroying injustice, of "walking humwhich they may even earn a living. THE SABBATH RECORDER

Items of Interest With her remittance for the RECORDER Fund comes the following from one of our good friends:

My heart was deeply touched by your editorial of June 26, by the very thought of having to give up the dear old RECORDER whose weekly visits have been such an inspiration to me for more than half a century, and I have been praying that many more hearts may be thus touched until they may respond to the appeal, according as God has blessed. . . . Our God-given SABBATH Recorder is the tie that binds together the hearts that love God's Sabbath truth for which we stand as a denomination. To me it would seem like a death blow to the cause we love.

From a letter written by a loyal professional man in the South, recently becoming a Seventh Day Baptist, are taken the following paragraphs:

Of course, I am but one in the denomination, but I want to raise my voice in protest against the very idea of not continuing the RECORDER. This weekly is the one tie that holds together our very widely scattered denomination, and furnishes inspiration to lone Sabbath keepers to press on. In my opinion its cost should be borne by the denomination without regard to whether it is a self sustaining enterprise. Everyone should know, who has ever been connected with a newspaper or other publication, that the subscription list does not pay the cost, but that the advertising is what pays it out. Now the RE-CORDER is unique in this respect, for it is practically void of advertising, and as a church organ, I believe it should be. Here is one paper that comes to my home that is an inspiration and uplift to my soul and there is nothing in it that seeks to make money out of me. What a difference it makes.

May I suggest to the annual Conference to continue to carry on this praiseworthy enterprise for our Master, and consider it as a regular, set. overhead expense of the denomination, just as is the upkeep of our missionaries. We do not ask them to pay their way; neither should we expect this wonderful organ of the church to compete with commercial enterprises, in its line, and pay its own way.

And from a loval Sabbath keeper on the Pacific coast come sentiments expressed thus:

God is faithful, dear RECORDER, To depressions say, "Good-by!" Trust in God, teach his commandments, And your troubles all will fly.

God is faithful, wants us faithful, Later on you'll know the why— You must teach the Lord's commandments Which he spoke from Sinai.

God is faithful, do not sorrow, He will all your needs supply; God will keep you and enlarge you, And he'll heed financing's cry.

- God is faithful. Yes, he's faithful! And he cannot ever lie;
- Just believe him, ever trust him, And your wants he will supply.

God is faithful, do not borrow; Hard to meet this by and by; In these last days, O RECORDER,

You're to stand and testify.

- You must trust him and believe him, He has an all-seeing eye;
- 'Tis through Jesus, if you love him, He will give for what you sigh.
- He'll be faithful, ever faithful,
- There's no end to his supply;
- He'll be with and be in you-

Not his wish that you should die.

God is faithful. Just you trust him, And be not afraid, but try;

He has promised ne'er to leave you, There's a need you must supply.

With the remittance from a long-time reader in the Western Association are the following words of appreciation:

It was with a keen sense of heartache (nothing else will express it) that I saw in the issue of June 26, of the RECORDER, the first editorial, "More Than Dollars and Cents," the possible necessity of giving up the publication of the SABBATH RECORDER, which for fifty-five of the eighty-nine years of its mission has come into my own home, without, I believe, a lapse in subscription. I can truly say that it would be a distinct hardship to be obliged to give it up. I trust that all loyal Seventh Day Baptists, giving diligent search for some way to sacrifice more, will give "a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull all together" that the dear old RECORDER may still pursue its blessed mission. It would not be hard to foresee what it would mean to us as a denomination if obliged to give up its publication. All honor to the one who in "Home Fundamentals" struck the keynote in a condition which is general and generally ignored.

Mr. James Myers, industrial secretary of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, in a "release" for which we have not room, expresses deep appreciation "of the generous gifts of clothing and money from church people all over the country, to the Coal Areas Relief Committee" of the council. "It will interest you to know that we have received contributions from fortyseven states; and one contribution each from Siam, China, West Africa, Panama, and Cuba." Extensive work, Mr. Myers tells us, is still being carried on and help furnished through the Quakers. Subsistence gardens are helping to relieve the situation and rehabilitation projects are providing some self support realize this is a matter that is very difficult to work out with any degree of success because so few people know very long ahead of time whether they can attend Conference. And I presume there is more uncertainty about that matter this year than is usually true.

This year especially it is our plan to give opportunity for full discussion of all matters with which the boards are concerned. In order that this discussion may be as fruitful as possible, and that all constructive suggestions may be given due consideration, it is planned to appoint early in the session a business committee to which shall be referred all board reports. To this same committee will be referred also any matters growing out of the discussions which it is thought should be brought before Conference for formal action. Thus all board reports, and all matters which the Conference thinks should be given consideration by the boards, will be considered first by this committee, which in turn will bring to Conference in business session their recommendations.

QUARTERLY REPORT OF CORRESPONDING SECRETARY

visited a number of churches with the view of learning the needs of the field before the time to make appropriations for another year.

On starting out I attended a meeting of the members of the Commission in Plainfield, N. J. Six days, including one Sabbath, were spent in the Western Association, during which time I preached for both of the churches in Hebron, Pa., addressed the students of the theological seminary in Alfred, and made numerous calls. Ten days were spent with our congregations in Welton, Marion, and Garwin, Iowa. From Iowa I went to Viborg, S. Dak., to visit lone Sabbath keepers who, as always, made liberal offerings for the work of the board. Nearly a week was spent in Dodge Center, Minn., during which time six meetings were held; two evening meetings /were held at New Auburn, Wis.; and the last work of the trip was four days, including the Sabbath, with our church in Jackson Center, Ohio. During this trip I delivered nineteen sermons and addresses.

I should mention here that Rev. James H. Hurley accompanied me in the work in Iowa, South Dakota, Minnesota, and northern Wisconsin. He rendered valuable service, and while at Dodge Center he received and accepted the call of our church in that village to become its pastor.

The first week-end in June I attended the Eastern Association in Plainfield, N. J.; the third Sabbath in June I participated in the annual sessions of the Central Association at Verona, N. Y., and July 7-9 I had part in the sessions of the Southeastern Association, which met with our church in Berea, W. Va.' At the Southeastern Association I was, by appointment, the delegate from the Eastern Association, as well as representative of the Missionary Society, and the Eastern Association voluntarily bore the entire expense of the trip.

Besides carrying on the correspondence, furnishing material for the Missions Department of the SABBATH RECORDER, and carrying on such other office work as demanded immediate attention, I have prepared the Annual Report of the Board of Managers.

Respectfully submitted.

WILLIAM L. BURDICK. Corresponding Secretary.

Westerly, R. I., July 16, 1933.

Voted that the president's action in the above matter be approved.

Voted that all appropriations made by this board, unless otherwise specified, shall be understood payable in United States currency.

Voted that the treasurer be authorized to charge off the items appearing in the Statement of Conditions: "General Fund Deficit," $26,860.90 and "Suspense," unapplied charge due to reserve for accounts receivable, $22,-298.33.

Voted that the treasurer be authorized to employ Judge Herbert Rathbun and such other counsel as may be needed in the matter of the Congetta Cerasoli mortgage.

Voted that the treasurer be authorized to employ Judge Rathbun and such other counsel as may be needed in the matter of the estate of Weeden Barber.

Corresponding Secretary William L. Burdick presented his annual report which was ordered adopted.

Voted that the annual report of the corresponding secretary, together with the annual report of the treasurer, be the ninetyfirst Annual Report of the Board of Managers to the Missionary Society.

Voted that the corresponding secretary be authorized to have two hundred fifty copies of the annual report printed and distributed, as usual.

The chairman of the Missionary Evangelistic Committee presented the following report which was adopted. It follows:

A meeting of the Missionary Evangelistic Committee was held this date. Editor Van Horn led in prayer.

A report by Secretary Burdick gave conditions and problems on the home field. The report was discussed.

The tentative budget was discussed.

It was voted to recommend to the board that an appropriation of $120 for Syracuse be included in the budget and deducted from the item of evangelistic work.

The meeting adjourned with prayer by Secretary Burdick.

The records of the year 1932-1933 are The Ladies Benevolent Society of the First closed for the Woman's Benevolent Society of the Seventh Day Baptist Church of Leonardsville, N. Y. Like other societies, I suppose, it has been hard to earn money this year, the hardest of any year since I have been a member, and that is over forty years, and all on account of "Old Man Depression" making us such a long continued visit. But I think we have been more thoughtful, a little kinder to the unfortunate. We have sewed for the needy in our locality, and also with the Red Cross. We packed a box for a family in another state.

We have been blessed in many ways. Death has not entered our membership this year. We have twenty-three members. We had a visitation committee which was under the sunshine committee and their duty was to visit the sick each month. Our usual activities have been carried on the same as any other Teas and bake sales have netted us year. $59.21, and a holiday sale, $75.88. We have sold jello and pudding mixtures, and have had three all-day work meetings with dinner served. We keep up the repairs of the parsonage and the kitchen and dining room of the church. We have given the Onward Movement $60.62, and have invested the legacy of $500 left by our sister, Mrs. Cora B. Barrett, in a government bond, the interest only to be used. We are still using the holiday gift bags. Our annual dues are $1. Total receipts $204.09.

DE RUYTER, N. Y.

The Ladies Benevolent Society of the De Ruyter Church, with about a dozen active members, has not been idle during the Conference year just ending.

Fourteen meetings have been held, one for election of officers, two socials, two food sales, seven work meetings, and one picnic.

The "Golden Rule Dinner" held at the parsonage on Washington's Birthday was a great success. The invitation was extended to all members of the church and congregation. Following a menu suggested by "The Golden Rule Foundation," a bountiful dinner was provided, each family contributing a portion. Like the miracle of the loaves and the fishes, all ate and were filled, and of the fragments nearly twelve baskets remained.

The "Bake-less Food Sale" was another activity out of the ordinary. Part of the notice of this sale follows:

A "Bake-less Food Sale" they mean to hold, Without any pie, cake, or beans to be sold. Each member her equal in money will take, And thus avoid spending the morning to bake.

During the year $100 has been paid toward painting the church buildings (a sum which has been accumulating for some time for this purpose), $60 to the Onward Movement, $22 for repairs on the parsonage, sunshine and other interests $29, making a total of about $211.

This society feels grateful that in these times of depression, and with so few active members, the blessing of the Master on its labors has been very evident, and especially so that the circle has remained unbroken.

EASTERN ASSOCIATION

REPORTED BY A. BURDET CROFOOT

Although no theme was selected in advance for the Eastern Association, meeting in Plainfield June 1 to 4, the thought of Pentecost and its meaning to true Christians appeared dominant in the meetings. The Thursday evening devotional services were led by Pastor Bond of the entertaining church, ~ who read the Biblical account of the original Christian Pentecost, and the need for a real personal Christian experience was emphasized again and again throughout the meetings. The executive committee had purposely avoided naming any theme, feeling that each speaker would have his own message and could present it better if not circumscribed and confined to a set theme. It might thus be considered all the more evidence that we need a Pentecostal experience today, that so much uniformity of thought was expressed at this meeting without being specifically pointed in that direction.

In his remarks at the opening devotional service Doctor Bond pointed out that two things were needful at the Pentecost—the gathering together of the Christians and the experiencing of the evidence of God's power. Now we, as Christians, had met together, thus fulfilling the first requirement. Direct reference was made again to the Pentecostal experience in the service on Sabbath eve, when Rev. Harold R. Crandall, pastor of the Pawcatuck Church, preached a sermon on "First Hand Knowledge." He selected as his text, "Now we believe, not because of thy telling, for we know of ourselves, and know that this is indeed the Messiah" (John 4:42). Mr. Crandall pointed out that until the time of Pentecost, all belief in God was by faith alone but that at that time, personal experience came. All of us who have come to know God subsequent to that time, must have our own personal experience of him.

Following this sermon, Rev. Willard D. Burdick, pastor of the Rockville Church, led the covenant meeting, in which the thought of personal experience was again emphasized. Numbers of those present at this meeting took part, relating their own personal experiences of God and Christ's teachings.

Sabbath day was a day of challenge. Rev. James L. Skaggs, pastor of the New York City Church, preached the morning sermon, choosing as his title, "The Master's Challenge." His text was, "Verily verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto the Father" (John14:12). Mr. Skaggs saw in this promise of greater things, a challenge to us to take up Christ's work where he laid it down and carry it forward. To do this we need a great moral and spiritual courage, especially in view of the physical insecurity which is so rife today.

A further challenge was issued in the Sabbath afternoon session under the direction of Secretary William L. Burdick, of the Missionary Board. At this session considerable discussion of the financial status of the various activities of our denomination developed. Mr. Alexander W. Vars definitely threw down the gauntlet when he pointed out that if every member of the denomination contributed five dollars, the debts of the various boards would be wiped out and credits re-established. This suggestion met with such enthusiasm that a resolution was adopted expressing the sense of this association as favoring action wipe the denominato out tional debt, and suggesting to the Conference Committee to Promote the Financial Program that it inaugurate some plan to that end.

The third challenge of the day came in the evening, following an enthusiastic young people's supper meeting, under the leadership of Frederik Bakker. Rev. Everett R. Clinchy, executive secretary of the National Conference of Jews and Christians, told the young people of their duty to develop in the world a social consciousness in keeping with the modern mechanical developments of civilization. Modern means of transportation and communication have made the world one vast neighborhood, he pointed out, but socially we are still isolated peoples differing in our interests and living behind social barriers. The youth of today must break down these barriers and make of the world one vast community as well as a physical neighborhood.

The programs of the various denominational boards were all inspiring and instructive. The Missionary Board session, held Sabbath afternoon and already mentioned in connection with the financial burden of our work, laid stress on the fact that without our missionary work, our denomination would fall by the wayside. Rev. Harold R. Crandall, speaking at this session, brought out the thought that our faith must result in far more than the absence of evil with us. Just as a garden must do more than be free of weeds to be of value, so must we bear fruit, if Christianity is to mean anything to us. Rev. James L. Skaggs, speaking at the same session on the necessity of raising the denominational budget, raised the question as to what is the alternative if we do not raise it. Since the only possible alternative is discontinuance of some of our denominational work, all of which is essential to our denominational life, and since this alternative is unthinkable, we must raise the budget, he said.

The Tract Society had the Sunday morning session, and after a discussion of the specific problems and aims of that board, this meeting was further devoted to the meaning of the Sabbath from various angles—in evangelism, in missions, in choosing a vocation, and in personal experience—again bringing up the Pentecostal thought prevalent throughout this meeting. Participating in this meeting, under the leadership of Secretary Herbert C. Van Horn, were Rev. Leon M. Maltby, Shiloh; Rev. Everett R. Harris, Waterford; Rev. Neal D. Mills, Piscataway; and Rev. Willard D. Burdick, Rockville.

One outstanding feature of the association was the meeting of the Woman's Board, under the leadership of Miss Evalois St. John, of Plainfield. Due to some misunderstanding, the secretary of this board for the Eastern Association failed to send in a program for this particular session, and Miss St. John was called upon at a moment's notice to lead the session. Under these trying circumstances, she conducted one of the most successful meetings of the session, choosing as her theme,

"Woman a Co-Worker with God." After an able development of this theme, the work of the various local societies was reviewed by representatives present.

The Sabbath School Board session, on Sunday afternoon, was intensely thought-provoking; the program was for the most part presented by the younger ministers in the association under the leadership of Rev. Willard D. Burdick, vice-president of the board. Modern trends in religious training of the youth in Sabbath school, Christian Endeavor, Vacation Religious Day School, and the Church were all discussed in a manner to enlighten those who might not be familiar with these various phases of the work, and a program for the co-ordination of these various activities into a united program was presented.

In addition to the sermons discussed separately, inspiring sermons were preached by Rev. Leon M. Maltby and Rev. Luther A. Wing (Berlin).

Next year's association is to be held with the Shiloh Church, and the following officers were elected: president, John T. Harris; vicepresident, Frank Harris; recording secretary, Mrs. Colwell Hoffman; assistant recording secretary, Mrs. Joseph Bowden; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Luther Davis; and treasurer, Everett C. Hunting.

A CORRECTION

Attention has been called by an interested reader to an error appearing in the RE-CORDER of June 26, 1933, attributing the authorship of "Beautiful Hills" to the late Dr. J. M. Stillman of Milton, Wis. Dean John N. Daland who reported the Milton commencement in which the error appears writes that the Milton College Carmina, page 16, carries the song, Beautiful Hills.--Mel Clark, Harmonized (for male voices) by J. M. Stillman.

It seems there to be left uncertain whether Mel Clark was author of words, or melody, or both. Mrs. Ellen Socwell Ramsey of Botna, Ia., writes that the author of the words was Mr. James G. Clarke, whom she heard while a student at Milton in the early eighties. At that time he sang in chapel some of his own compositions, among them "The Beautiful Hills," "which was," says Mrs. Ramsey, "his favorite child."

WHAT CAN YOUNG PEOPLE DO FOR MISSIONS?

BY W. L. BURDICK

Rightly understood, missions constitute the colossal task of the ages. It is one which challenges the best that is in men, as well as their most heroic endeavors. To engage in missions may lead to untold hardships, but it thrills the soul and fills life with the highest joy known on earth.

That which Christian missions undertake to accomplish is to get men to accept Christ's way of life, or in other words, to lead all men to lives of righteousness as taught and exemplified by Christ. This is the way to well-being, prosperity, and happiness for the individual, the family, the state, and for men in all forms of society. Connected with this there is something else which is of great importance. When men sincerely turn to Christ in lives of righteousness, they come into possession of a new force-life divine-which energizes all their faculties, adds grace to their lives, gives marvelous power in all undertakings, sustains in trial, brings continual peace, and makes life victorious. Missions would make men possessors of all these.

The field in which it is intended by the Master that missions should operate begins with those nearest us and extends to the uttermost bounds of the earth.

Every young person should make up his mind that whatever his occupation he will join with Christ in promoting missions. But what can young people do for missions? There are many things. Let us name a few.

1. The first thing they can do is to become people may not have large sums to give and they may not be prepared for life's work, but sincere followers of Christ themselves. Christ said to his disciples, "Ye shall be witnesses they can aid missions by prayer. unto me," and this applies to us. To be sure they usually do not earn much during the years of youth; but every young person has some money and it is his privilege to give a little at least, and the young people who have large resources can give much. No young person should allow himself to consume on himself all he receives. Such a course is fatal to spiritual growth and power.

Dr. Frederick K. Stamm of Brooklyn, N. Y., says that only one child in four receives religious teaching of any kind. As I read this statement I could not help wondering 5. est of the pupils. It is possible the teacher lacked the knowledge of how to put the message across in a way to appeal to the child mind.

A short time ago I heard of a certain superintendent of a Sunday school who attended a conference of religious workers every summer, when possible. This was not because he was new and inexperienced at his job, but because he wanted to keep up to date and gain new ideas to help him in his line of work. I wonder how we could better improve our time than to attend such a conference or in some way take a course that would benefit us as well as the children or people we are teaching.

A short time before his death, Dr. Amos R. Wells quoted a professor of Yale University as saying, "I love to teach." Doctor Wells then went on to say, "Professor Phelps' words, as he himself would agree, would apply especially to teachers of the Bible, to teachers of youth in the Sunday schools. There they find the crown of literature, the themes most important to study and master-the great subjects of time and eternity. Let Sunday school teachers then exalt their high calling. Let them be so zealous for it that their zeal will communicate itself to their pupils. That is the sort of teaching and learning that really counts."

I am sure we all agree with Doctor Wells that the Bible school teacher does have the greatest subject and themes of literature to study and master. Surely a good salesman or teacher should know and understand his goods or subjects before he tries to interest others in them.

Someone has said that "Education makes for efficiency." We should not forget that religious work as well as secular education requires and deserves the most efficient work that can possibly be given. May we as young people use the present time in training for the future, and be truly efficient workmen for God. God's work needs zealous workmen to spread his word of truth.

MATTHEW 10: 1, 5-7

Junior Christian Endeavor Topic for Sabbath Day, August 5, 1938

BY MRS. NETTIE CRANDALL Junior Christian Endeavor Superintendent

WORKING TOGETHER

Betty and her chum Clara were practicing a piano duet for the recital which Miss Chase, their music teacher, was giving the next week. Betty was playing the upper part and so felt very important because, as she remarked to Clara, "that is the air." Clara had replied with her chin in the air, "Miss Chase says all the pretty chords are in the bass." And so it was that the quarrel had begun. Both were sure that they were the more important.

It was not often that the girls disagreed and although Clara declared that "Betty did not need to feel so smart," and that "any way she could play the upper part better than Betty could," still it was with a heavy heart that she went up to bed. As she lay awake thinking about the compliments which she would be likely to receive from her friends, she heard a voice say, "You wouldn't know when you made a discord if it were not for me. I am the most important one in this company. Just because your fingers hit the keys, you do not need to think that you are so smart, Miss Hand."

"I say, neither one of you needs to feel so important. Why, if it were not for us, Miss Hand would not know what to play," remarked the Eyes together. "And there would be no music for you to hear, Mr. Ear, if we did not do our work so well," put in one of the Eyes.

Some day they are going to write some more stories for the RECORDER. GOOD FOR EVIL

The rich man said, "Why should I give you food? You are a farmer and you should have enough to eat."

The poor farmer went away, planning to get even with his rich neighbor.

When the wife of the rich man heard about this she felt very sorry for the poor family. So without telling her husband she packed two sacks full of food and took it to them.

The poor farmer was very much pleased and earnestly expressed his thanks. This made the rich man feel very much ashamed of himself.

When Harry's sister Mary heard about it, she said, "We are going on a picnic; let us take Frank with us. That is the best way to get even with him."

They did so and the next day Frank came over to Harry's house and loaned him his skates for the whole afternoon.

JESUS, OUR EXAMPLE

BY REV. WM. M. SIMPSON

Jesus Christ "suffered for you, leaving you an example, that ye should follow in his steps: who did no sin, neither was any guile found in his mouth: who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered, threatened not; but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously: who his own self bare our sins in his body on the tree, that we, having died unto sins, might live unto righteousness; by whose stripes we are healed" (1 Peter 2: 21-24). So Simon Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ, wrote to early Christians scattered throughout various provinces in Asia Minor. And this is the text upon which Charles M. Sheldon based his book, "In His Steps."

That book raises the question, "What would Jesus do, if he were in our place?" It presents the perplexities which beset a minister, an editor, a railway superintendent, a college president, a merchant, a physician, an heiress, a chorister, an author, and otherswhen they undertake to decide every issue by the question, "What would Jesus do, if he were in our place?" The question is just as important and just as perplexing as it was when the apostle wrote the words, or as when Mr. Sheldon wrote his book.

In answering this question we have to consider some cases which did not occur in the time of Jesus. Jesus never took issue with an antagonist in the reader's column of a daily newspaper; he never had to decide which driver was to blame in an automobile accident; he was never vexed because the neighbors turned on their radio too loud on summer nights when he was trying to sleep on his screened.

in front porch; he never cast his vote in a national election on the question of woman's suffrage; he never took an elevator to the thirtieth floor; he never sent a letter by airmail; he never drew his money out of a national bank to put it into postal savings; he never chose between taking an airplane because it was quicker or a bus because it was cheaper; he never discontinued a magazine on account of its editorials or advertising; he never took out naturalization papers in a new country; he never telegraphed flowers when a friend died. No need to go further on this line, except to remind ourselves that in all his recorded parables, discourses, conversations, and in the Sermon on the Mount he gave no specific directions as to how his followers should behave on any of these or many other of the occasions that make up the routine of our present daily lives. Then what is it—to follow Jesus?

Mediaeval artists painted Jesus as an effeminate man with long beard and wearing long flowing robes; and now we have discovered the Antioch chalice, a work of the first century art, depicting him as an athletic man with smooth face and wearing a toga. However, we are sure that being like Jesus is not a question of our make-up or costumes.

On one occasion one came to Jesus and said, "Master, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest." Jesus replied, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the heaven have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head" (Matthew 9: 20). On another occasion Jesus said, "He that doth not take up his cross and follow after me, is not worthy of me. He that findeth his life shall lose it; and he that loseth his life for my sake shall find it" (Matthew 10: 38-39). Following Jesus calls for heroic efforts and a Christlike spirit, and unfailing love.

Each writer of the four gospels-Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John-presents Jesus in his own way You can read through the Gospel of Mark in two hours One morning I decided to read that gospel through at one sitting, and as I read, to jot down on paper ways in which we could be like him. Som with pencil and paper at hand, I began I read on and onbut I did not write anything, and on to the end, without writing anything. The further I read, the higher I saw Jesus rising out of my reach. I felt that I could not be like him. There were his miracles, appearing super-

We date our calendars from his Spencerian system of penmanship by imitating birth; he is the inspiration of the best in music, printed copy, which was in a chart hung on art, sculpture, architecture, drama, education, the schoolroom wall. The teacher explained government, economic life-all of life. human; there was his magnetic personality, attracting to him fishermen, publicans, sinners, rulers, and crowds from Galilee, Judea, Jerusalem, Idumea, Perea, and Phoenicia; there was his transforming power, changing ordinary people into saints and leaders. You cannot gain a magnetic personality, or transforming power, by "imitation"; you have to grow these. So I read through to the end of the Gospel of Mark with a growing feeling that I cannot be become acquainted with people not by knowing all their history, but by seeing them on occasions. Those occasions, those incidents reveal their real selves. In the gospels we see Jesus on occasions; at the age of twelve he is intent upon the things of the kingdom of God; at thirty he is baptized and announcing his policy, and meeting the temptations of ambition unscathed. He heals the sick befriends the outcasts, teaches the open-minded, opposes the evils current in home life, religion, state, economic life; he sets examples of humble service, of sincere friendship, of unfailing devotion, he goes the way of the cross for the sins of the world. The secret lay in his prayer life; God was always near to him; and, Jesus was always in harmony with God's will; he had identified himself with the will of God, so that he could say, "I and the Father are one." In going to the cross Jesus is still our Example, for he said, "If any man would come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me."

Hawthorne caught up that lesson in his story, "The Great Stone Face." You remember that Ernest in his boyhood heard the legend, known in the valley where he lived, that some day there would come a man who would resemble the Great Stone Face, which had been wrought by nature on the mountain-side, and who would be a benefactor to all that vallev. Ernest hoped to live to see that man. As a growing boy and youth and man he loved to ponder and admire the Great Stone Face on the mountainside. As passed various notable men came, years almost convinced the inhabitants who that they were the image of the Great Stone Face. Always the people were disappointed, and always Ernest insisted that he would yet come. Ernest grew old. And one evening as he was addressing his neighbors on a timely subject in an open-air meeting, the people, looking at Ernest and looking at the Great Stone Face, noticed the resemblance and suddenly cried out, "Look! Look! Ernest himself is the likeness of the Great Stone Face!"

If we are to be like Jesus we need to keep him ever before us as our Ideal. Let his spirit and his way of doing things be our inspiration from our childhood to old age. We must follow him around—all around through Galilee -at weddings, through the grainfields, at the tax-collector's office, among the fishermen, where sorrow comes, where men toil, where problems arise, where children play, and where grown people quarrel. And let us follow him down to Jerusalem, passing through Samaria whose people are despised by others. going into the temple, spending some time in the hospitable home of Mary and Martha. facing the enmity of the scribes and Pharisees, enduring the teachery of a trusted disciple, praying in Gethsemane, enduring the cross.

But our following him will not go down in defeat at the cross. Follow on; follow the ever-living Christ down through the centuries. Everywhere his spirit goes to bless mankind; in his spirit womanhood is lifted, childhood is given a chance, slaves are liberated, new worlds are discovered, schools are established, research laboratories find new remedies for the ills of mankind, the universe is charted, home comforts are increased, the outreach of brotherhood is enlarged, and men are redeemed from sin to a life of righteousness.

Let us follow him today-when we read our newspaper, as we walk our streets, as we drive our cars in the traffic, as we cast our votes, as we take the elevator to our offices, as we write our letters, as we manage our finances, as we meet others who have their tasks and problems and joys and sorrows just as we have ours. He did not specify forms for particular instances, but he did set an example of the right spirit. In that spirit we seek to follow his example.

There is a story I have heard, A poet learned it of a bird, And kept its secret every word. A story of a dim ravine O'er which the towering tree-tops lean With one blue rift of sky between.

And there two thousand years ago A little flower as white as snow Swayed in the silence to and fro.

Day after day with longing eye The floweret watched the narrow sky And fleecy clouds that floated by.

And through the darkness, night by night, One gleaming star would climb the height To cheer the lonely floweret's sight.

Thus, watching the blue heavens afar And the rising of its favorite star. A slow change came—but not to mar.

For softly o'er its petals white There crept a blueness, like the light Of skies upon a summer night.

And in its chalice, I am told, The bonny bell was formed to hold A tiny star that gleamed like gold.

"Be not fashioned according to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that you may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God" (Romans 12: 2). Jesus took the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men; "and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, becoming obedient, even unto death, yea, the death of the cross." (Philippians 2: 7-8). "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called children of God; and such we are. For this cause the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not. Beloved, now are we children of God, and it is not yet made manifest what we shall be. We know, that if he shall be manifested, we shall be like him; for we shall see him even as he is" (1 John 3: 7).

ALBION, WIS.

The Albion Vacation Day School closed with a picnic Monday. A demonstration of the work done in the school was given at the church Friday night. Thirty-nine pupils were enrolled with an average attendance of thirtyseven. Among those who spoke or sang to the school were Mrs. Charles Thorngate, Mrs. John Thorngate, Mrs. C. S. Sayre, and Mrs. M. C. Sayre. One graduate, Clair Slagg, received a certificate signifying that he had completed eight years of work well done. Miss Mary Thorngate was the supervisor and the other teachers were Mrs. C. S. Lawton and Mrs. Clinton Green.

Dr. George Thorngate and family, who have been guests of his parents the past week, left Tuesday for their home. Doctor George has a position in the T. B. sanitarium at Raybrook, N. Y.

E. E. Loofboro of Chicago spent the past week at his home here and attended the commencement exercises of Milton College. His brother, Rev. Eli Loofboro, wife, and son John Dean, of Lost Creek, W. Va., spent Sabbath with Mr. and Mrs. Loofboro and attended church here. —Milton News.

WALWORTH, WIS.

A Vacation Bible School was held with us this year, beginning June 26. It was the largest school we have had and in some respects the most worth while one. There were thirty-five pupils enrolled. These were divided into the following classes: the 1st primary, with nine pupils: 2nd primary, with seven pupils; junior boys, with eight pupils; junior girls, with eleven pupils. Special departments were: music, recreation, and handcraft. Miss Minnie Godfrey and Miss Ethel Butterfield were the ones in charge. Virgie Nelson, Reva Nelson, Laura Robbins, and Roy Crandall were teachers in different departments. All of these showed real ability in the work rendered. The deepest interest in the school was always manifest by the pupils who were gathered in from the community. Only six of the school could be counted as from our own families. A copy of the "tabernacle" and its furniture was made by the boys and girls that is worthy of preservation, as were some posters of Bible characters. It was indeed a Bible school. A demonstration was given at the close of the school on Friday night, July-7. It is well to remember that real love for the work and devotion to the same were manifest by the force of teachers who wrought without pay. It was a free will offering for the good of the children.

Rev. and Mrs. James L. Skaggs and son Victor, of New York City, have been here for several days, visiting in our homes. Mr. Skaggs has given us two inspiring sermons, one Sabbath day, the other on Sunday night. Both services were held in the U.S. Van Horn home, as the interior of the church is being redecorated with new paper, paint, and window shades. The Skaggs will spend some time at Marion and Garwin, returning here for the annual meeting of the Iowa churches, July 28-30. Anticipating the coming also of Elder James H. Hurley, Rev. Claude L. TRUE FRIENDSHIP

"The essential quality in the heart of friendship is not the desire to have friends, but the desire to be a friend; not to get good and help from others, but to impart blessings to others.

Many of the sighings for friendship which we hear are merely selfish longings; desires for happiness, for pleasure, for the gratification of the heart, which friends would bring.

If the desire were to be a friend, to do others good, to serve and give help, it would transform the life and char----Contributed. acter."
