THE RECORDER, as the Organ of the Seventh-day Buptist Denomination, is devoted to the exposition and vindication of the views and movements of that people. It aims to promote vital piety and vigorous people in action, at the same time that it urges obedience to the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus. Its columns are open to the advocacy of all reformatory measures which seem likely to improve the condition of society, diffuse knowledge, reclaim the inebriate, and enfranchise the enslaved. In its Literary and Intelligence Departments, care is taken to furnish matter adapted to the wants and tastes of every class of readers. very class of reducts. The Terms of Subscription for the Recorder are:

At Ningpo there are thirteen missionaries; schools, churches and an hospital are among the means of influencing the people, as well as the preached Gospel, and lately increased interest is felt in the Word. I heard of several aged women whose hearts the Lord had opened. When I was there, a month since, the allies were preparing to drive the rebels out of the city, in order to ensure the safety of the foreign settlement, and there was great commotion in consequence. These commotions bring the two races together more and more, and perhaps the friction excites more thought than otherwise would be elicited. The people who could escape from the city on its capture fled to foreigners for protection.

At Shanghai there are fifteen missionaries a less number than has been stationed here for many years past. The excitement connected with the presence of large bodies of foreign troops during the last two years. and the recent threatening progress of the Nanking rebels in the vicinity, has stirred up the native community, increased their numbers threefold, and driven in thousands more from the villages and towns overrun by them, so that mission labors at Shanghai have been greatly interfered with. THE VOLUNTEER'S WIFE TO HER HUSBAND. Don't stop a moment to think, John, Your country calls, then go, Don't think of me or the children, John, I'll care for them you know.

Miscellaneous.

Leave the corn upon the stalks, John, Potatoes in the hill, And the pumkins on the vines, John, I'll gather them with a will. But take your gun and go, John Take your gun and go, For Ruth can drive the oxen, John And I can use the hoe.

I have heard my grand sire tell, John, (He fought at Bunker Hill,) How he counted all his life and wealth, His country's offering still. Shall we shame the brave old blood. John, That flowed on Monmouth plain? No, take your gun and go, John, If you ne'er come back again. Yes, take your gun and go, John, &c.

Our army's short of blankets, John, Then take this heavy pair, I spun and wove them when a girl And worked them with great care ; There's a rose in every corner, John, And here's my name you see, Off the ground they'll warmer feel, That they were made by me. Take your gun and go, John, &c.

And if it be God's will, John, You ne'er come back again I'll do my best for the children, John, In sorrow, want; or pain. In winter nights I'll teach them all That I have learned at school, To love the country, keep the laws, Obey the Saviour's rule. Then take your gun and go, John, &c.

And in our village church, John, And at our humble board. We'll pray that God will keep you, John, And heavenly aid afford. While all who love their country's cause, Shall love and bless you too, And night and morning they will pray, For freedom and for you. Then take your gun and go, John, &c.

And now good-bye to you, John, I cannot say farewell, We'll hope and pray for the best, John, God's goodness none can tell. Be His great arm around you, John, To guard you night and day. Be our beloved country's shield Till the war has passed away. Then take your gun and go, John Take your gun and go, For Ruth can drive the oxen, John, And I can use the hoe.

Come, sunny looks that in my memory throng, Come! bringing back some happy afternoon; Come ! for your gentle presence is the song Without which Nature hums a lonely tune. Oh! light feet, tread the narrow path once more! Come to my cry, fair forms, and resting near, On the dear rocks where you have sat before, A little while renew the golden year.

Come to this spot, whence we so oft have viewed The gleam of wave, rock-broken, round the bay, Come once more, or wild grasses will intrude, And clasp their hands across the narrow way; Come for the place is fair as land of dreams, And through the rushes winds hum mournfully As if just moved in slumber, and the stream still Struggles through its cresses to the sea.

Tis vain to call; I once the strain have heard That lacked no note to make the tune complete, Once, wakened by the touch of some kind word. I found a garden fair, with flowers sweet; Then, plucking fruit from many a drooping bough, I strayed, untroubled by foreboding doubt; Once have I passed the golden gate, and now I see it far back, like a star going out.

The daisies of the golden year are dead, Its sunsets will not touch the west again, Its glories are removed, its blessings fied, And only fully known when sought in vain ; For the fair forms that once my pathway crossed Are gone, with waters of the golden year That now are mingled in the sea and lost
