THE BETURN OF THE BIRDS.

BY WILLIAM CULLER BRYANT.

Thear from many a little throat.

A warble interrupted long; Thear the robin's flute-like note, The bluebird's slenderer song.

Brown meadows and the russet hill, Not yet the haunt of grazing herds, And thickets by the glimmering rill, Are all alive with birds.

Choir of Spring, why come so soon?

On leafless grove and herbless lawn,

Warm lie the yellow beams of noon ; Yet winter is not gone.

For frost shall sheet the pools again ;

And load the pines with snow.

Ye come in haste and fear.

Of half a million men.

For there is heard the bugle-blast,

Again the blustering East shall blow,

While a white tempest through the glen,

Yet, haply, from the region where, Waked by an earlier spring than here,

The blossomed wild plum scents the sir.

The booming gun, the jarring drum

In valleys that were yours till then, And Earth has shuddered to the tramp

There mighty hosts have pitched the camp

And on their chargers, spurfing fast, Armed warriors go and come.

But there, where sprouts the beechen spray, The sudier only breaks the sod

To hide the slain away. Stay, then, beneath our ruder sky:

Heed not the storm-clouds rising black, Nor yelling winds that with them fly; Nor let them iright you back.

Back to the stifling battle cloud, To burning towns that blot the day, And trains of mounting dust that shroud The armies on their way.

Stay, for a tint of green shall creep Soon o'er the orohard's grassy floor, And from its bed the crocus peep Beside the housewile's door.

Here build, and dread no harsher sound To scare you from the sheltering tree, Than winds that stir the branches round And murmur of the bee.

nd we will pray that, ere again The flowers of autumn bloom and die, Our generals and their strong-armed men May lay their weapons by.

Then may ye warble unafraid, Where hands, that wear the fetters now, Free as your wings shall ply the spade, And guide the peaceful plough.

Then, as our conquering hosts return, What shouts of jubiles shall break From placid vale and mountain stern Aud shore of mighty lake !

And midland plain and ocean strand Shall thunder : "Glory to the brave, Peace to the torn and bleeding land, And freedom to the slave !? -Allantic Monthy, March, 1864.
