Sabbath morning, and take it up and the spirit and actions of the nake it into butter on First-day This would save the employment of servants upon the Sabbath, and it would save many from running around the neighborhood to buy the butter for family use as they now do, and also dispense with all unnecessary labor upon the Sabbath. Well, says one, we should make less money in that way. Then, my dear brother, (in profession,) money is the god you worship, is it? In sorrow have I observed, for a long time, the increase of this money-loving spirit among us as a denomination.

The cheese-makers I have spoken of; and the same spirit is manifest in those engaged in lumber business. They are called good, substantial church members ; but they will start to go "down the river," on the Sabbath, as quick as any other day, if the water is right; and they pay no regard to the holy day of God while on their way down. The reason of this is not, as some claim, that it is necessary, but they lave the money. What kind of an influence does the Sabbath-keeper have in favor of God's truth, who goes "down the the vows which we have made to him river" with a crew of Sunday men. and works all Sabbath-day with them? He simply says, by his actions, that he has a greater desire to get his lumber down the river, than he has to obey God's law; so his influence will go in favor of the money, rather than of the honor of his God. Where, to-day, is the influence of multitude away. And then the Saviour some who; a few years ago, were firm temperance men ?! We hear nothing from them now upon this subject; all alone in prayer; but the disciples yet the tide of intemperance was never carrying, more drunkards to their graves each year than at the angrily blew, the waves rolled high, present. They once stood in the forefront of the great temperance ship. army ; but where are they now? Let us seek them. Here is a farmer who was once one of them, but now he is raising rhubarb to make wine of, and it "is such a splendid drink," and it makes most splendid drunkards. In some places, I have been told, the young men take it in their pockets to parties, and treat the young ladies, and all get drunk. It will not do for this man to say anything in the cause of temperance, for, if he does, in order to be consistent, he must near Tripoli, Syria, of interesting remains of antiquity, by Messrs. Farnhooth and Pezzicam. In prosecuting their search after Greek and Roman antiquities, in ground which has been cultivated as a garden, they came upon a Hebrew house, which is supposed to date back one or two centuries before Christ. Some of the rooms are in a state of perfect preservation, and contain articles of furniture resembling those found in Egypt. But what is most remarkable, it is said that they found also manuscripts, among which were two of the books of Moses, David's Psalms, and a collection of Hebrew poems unknown to the most celebrated Hebraists. All these works have been sent to the London Asiatic Society.

A Conscientious Soldier.-- A few venings ago, just as the Secretary of the Treasury had arrived at his re-

While in the service he had through a mistake of some disbursing officer, been overpaid $393. Although he had used this money, yet his conscience would no longer permit him to conceal the fact, and he had directly approached the Secretary to unburden his mind. "Here," said he. addressing the Secretary, "are $200, which I wish to return now. I have loaned $200, which will be returned

The National Council of Congrega tionalists, held last year in Boston recommended that the churches a that denomination should try to raise $200,000 to aid in building meeting houses in the West and South. De cember 17th was the day appointed for making the effort, and the result shows $95,000 paid into the treasury from about one thousand churches. From this it would appear that only one-third of the churches acted on the suggestion of the Council.

A priest of Caserta, aged forty-six, presented himself before the deputy mayor of the Montecalvario district, and asked to be married to a woman aged twenty-seven. A CASE OF 27 YEARS' STANDING CURED ! From Insley Jewett, No. 15 Avon Place,

" I have suffered, and sometimes severely, or 27 years, from dyspepsia. I commenced taking the Peruvian Syrup, and found immediate benefit from it. In the course of three or four weeks I was entirely relieved from my sufferings, and have enjoyed uninterrupt-ed health ever since." Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy; from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy; and happy men and women; and invalids can not reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.
