Andrus was with us seven days, preached four times. and conversed with several of the brethren and friends. He said the prospect was better than he had expected. . /

I am pained to think of one brother who has stood shoulder to shoulder with me until last Sunday, one who has often cheered me in my troubles. He has gone back. I looked upon others. and wondered if they would, also go away. I thought of Joshua. and lone Elijah; I thought, too, of on the Sabbath day, or , evening Peter. who denied his Lord.

We have the question in every conceivable shape-the seventh day, the first day, the seventh-part-of-time theory, and the no-Sabbath theory. I think it will be well to let the to law. They can't lay it down. I have not failed to try to declare the whole counsel. What my former brethren will do with me, at their meeting next Sabbath, I cannot tell. Brethren, pray for me. If the Lord of the Sabbath will be with me, as he was with lone Elijah, all will be well. Baal's prophets will rage in vain. I feel that I shall depend upon His Almighty arm and unlimited wisdom, to sustain and direct me through all the trials which I may have to pass through. I meet with more or less opposition, everywhere. A CITY OF BEGGARS.

Mexico is not a pleasant country to live in. It has a fertile soil, a charming climate, and rich mines. But its people are restless, and are always longing for revolutions. If its government were secure, and its citizens industrious and quiet, it would be a beautiful home. An exchange gives the following account of the city of Mexico:

PALACE CARS FOR CATTLE.

It is a cheering consideration to witness the laudable efforts that are constantly being made, to protect dumb animals from inexcusable cruelty from those who have the care of them. An ill-humored English wife, abusing her husband on account of his mercenary disposition, told him that if she was dead he would marry the devil's eldest daughter, if he could get anything by it. "That's true," replied the husband; "but the worst of it is, in England one can't marry two sisters." A Schenectadian threw a kiss to his daughter in the street. A young married lady near by thought it was meant for her and returned it. Her husband happened along just then, saw it, and thrashed the original kiss-thrower. Hence an assault and battery suit. That's the way they tell it, but it's too thin.
