Why should you dread to-morrow, And thus despoil to day? For when you borrow trouble. You must expect to pay; It is a good old maxim, Which should be often preached— Don't cross the bridge before you, Until the bridge is reached

You might be spared much sighing, f vou would keep in mind, The thought that good and evil, Are always here combined: There must be something wanting, And though you roll in wealth, You miss from out your casket That precious jewel-health

And though you're strong and sturdy Yon may have an empty purse-And earth has many trials Which I consider worse; But whether joy or sorrow Fill up your mortal span, 'Twill make your pathway brighter To smile whenever you can!
