der God, has turned so many from their evil habits, to push, the work must go on. Not for I think of De Ruyter, you can not forget the accomplished Christian lady who was our first prescript at Alfred.

Lincolnton. At a time when the roads were so blocked with snow that Bro. J. A. Wells, who had charge of my appointments in Madison county, could not go about to make them.

claims to operate under an entirely new invention which has been thoroughly tested. The conjury of invention has disarmed doubt, and we are amazed to wonder at the power of electricity.

A LION FIGHT A SLAVE TRADER. A London dispatch of April 4th, says: A letter dated Dem Idris, Jan. 1st, to Gordon Pasha, Governor-General of Southern Egypt, from one of his officers who were sent to break up the slave depots in the neighborhood of Bahr el Gazal.

The colored Exodus. A New Orleans dispatch of April 5th, says: A call has been issued by some prominent colored clergymen, teachers and school directors of colored people of this State, for a convention at New Orleans, April 17th, to consider the condition of their race in Louisiana.

The Spencer Art Sale. The collection of paintings which has been favorably known to collectors and lovers of art as the Spencer collection, was recently sold at Clinton Hall, New York.

MADAME BONAPARTE. Madame Bonaparte died at Baltimore, Md., on the afternoon of April 4th. She has been a woman of note, and of whom we find in a cotemporary, the following brief history: "The history of this woman is not only sad, but it also has a romantic aspect."

MOR LAW IN IOWA. On the 21st of March, the citizens of Davis City, in view of a long series of lawless and crime by a gang of desperadoes, led by Irving Tucker and one Tarter, banded together and hung Tucker. Tarter was also captured, and said he was willing to swear if he was allowed to kill two citizens against whom he had a grudge.
