Women's Auxiliary Tract Societies.

A joint session of the Women's Auxiliary Sabbath Tract Societies of First Alfred, Second Alfred, and Hartsville, was held at Alfred Centre, Jan. 19th, 1881.

Mrs. Freeborn Hamilton was called to the chair, and the following programme was presented:

- Prayer, Singing, Essay, Recitation, Paper, The Hartsville Casket, Recitation, Essay.

Adjourning till 2 P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Mrs. N. J. Maxson in the Chair.

After singing, "He Leadeth Me," the following resolutions, which were laid over at the joint session at Hartsville, were taken up, and, after discussion, the first three were adopted, and the 4th and 5th were laid over for discussion at the next joint session:

- 1. Resolved, That we do not exert that reclaiming influence over the erring, which should characterize professed followers of Christ.
2. Resolved, That it is the duty of Christian mothers to require of their children, from an early age, a regular attendance at divine service upon the Sabbath.
3. Resolved, That to become more efficient in promoting the interest of missionary and Sabbath reform work, we must feel personal interest in the work.
4. Resolved, That in view of the increase of dissipation among our youth, it is our duty to exert a more radical influence to stay the progress of this great evil which destroys both soul and body.
5. Resolved, That we should take measures to establish an Auxiliary Tract Society, if practicable, in every church in our Association.

By a vote of the meeting, an essay on tobacco, read from the paper, and the essay of Mrs. M. T. Burdick, were requested for publication in the SABBATH RECORDER.

After prayer by Dr. Maxson, the session adjourned to meet with the Second Alfred Society, May 19th, 1881, at 11 A. M.

Silver Wedding.

Among the weddings—paper, wooden, glass, tin and silver—held this Winter, here and hereabouts, the silver wedding of Caleb Wilcox and his wife Sally is worthy of mention. Twenty-five years ago—Jan. 13th, 1856—Caleb and Sally were joined in holy wedlock. Since that time, many changes have taken place. Many then living have passed away, but the only change that has marked the way of this wedded pair is that the love of early days has grown stronger. Together they have toiled in honest and worthy endeavor, and have stood by each other in sickness and health, and together they have grown a quarter of a century older, led by the same guiding hand.

It was a time for a glad reunion and for grateful memories. With fine sleighing and much good willing, a large number of friends, old and young, met at an early hour at the home of the happy couple. Among them were some of the old-time guests when Caleb and Sally were made one. Many were the congratulations and warm the hand-shaking. During the evening, the company were kept lively by the cheerful presence, conversation and songs, with guitar accompaniment of Mr. C. M. Gillette, the son of Mrs. Wilcox.

$48 41, as a token of their good-will, for which the recipients desire to express their gratitude, and trust no one will have occasion to regret the help thus bestowed.

We trust the religious interest is assuming a more healthy attitude among us. Some, at least, express a great anxiety for greater spirituality and a more complete consecration to the Master's cause. Pray for us that love may prevail.

Condensed News.

LOST IN A STORM.—A Fort Elliott (Tex.) dispatch of Jan. 28th says: "The buck board of the conveyance bringing the mail from Tuscosa has been found, with the mail bags and harness of the team, but the driver, two passengers, and two mules, are missing. They are supposed to have been lost in the recent snow storm."

A contract has been agreed upon between the authorities of Florida and parties representing capitalists in Philadelphia and the Pacific coast, to drain Lake Okeechobee in South Florida. This will reclaim twelve million acres of the best sugar land in the world. The territory reclaimed will include the celebrated Everglades and be twice as large as New Jersey. This is the largest contract on record, and when completed Florida can produce more sugar than the United States consumes.

Heavy rains are reported on the Pacific coast, extending from British Columbia to the southern portion of California. It is said to have been the heaviest fall of rain since 1861. The streams nearly all overflowed their banks, wash-outs were numerous on the railroads; towns were flooded, and cellars filled with water, causing great loss. Altogether, the storm is said to be one of the most destructive ever experienced on that coast.

The Paris Temps publishes the following as the Chilean conditions of peace: The cession of Antofagasta to Chili, the surrender of the allied fleet and the payment of an indemnity of $30,000,000, whereof Peru shall assume $20,000,000 and Bolivia $10,000,000, Chili to occupy Callao and to work the guano deposits and copper and saltpetre mines, until the full payment of the indemnity is made.

It is stated that the Pennsylvania Railroad will soon still further reduce emigrant fares five per cent., making a total reduction of fifty-five per cent. It is stated that the steamship companies are now reaping rich harvests by selling through tickets on the other side of the Atlantic at full rates and getting fifty per cent. reduction from the railroads.

The effort of the Pennsylvania Legislature for the election of a United States Senator has thus far proved unavailing. The Republicans are divided, and the Democrats do not seem inclined to assist either faction, evidently taking the consoling view that it is "none of their fight."

Father Edward Purcell, manager of the disastrous church banking business in Cincinnati, which involved a loss to depositors of several millions of dollars, died, of apoplexy on the night of Jan. 20th, at the Ursuline Convent, in Brown county, Ohio.

A fire at South Bend, Ind., Jan. 28th, burned seven large buildings and business houses, including the City Library and City Clerk's office. The hydrants were frozen, giving the fire three hours headway. Loss $60,000.

The snow has so interfered with the running of trains, that the receipt of mails is quite problematical. Not only are trains delayed, but the usual connections are missed, and mails are thereby seriously delayed.

The Supreme Court of Wisconsin has decided that money lent on Sunday can not be recovered, not even if there is a subsequent promise to pay. This may be valid law in Wisconsin, but it is poor justice anywhere.

Selected Miscellany.

GROWING OLD.

BY J. W. BAUKER.

Garefully, tenderly, down by the stream, Hangs the pale aster at morning and even...

Over the meadowland, deftly and still, Blasting the beauty of Spring's early green...

As I gazed on the aster that stood by the stream, So withered and pale with the weight of the year...

But then, while the years keep their measureless tread Thro' the shadows of earth, we may count by the way...

THE TWO PARTINGS.

On a Winter evening twenty years ago, a fair young girl stood before the glass in her own pleasant little room...

"Come, Emma," called her mother at length; "I am afraid that you forget Mr. B. is waiting for you..."

No, Emma had not forgotten, as the rosy blush that stole across her cheek testified. Her last thought, as she stood smiling at her reflection in the glass had been...

"No, I thank you; I do not drink it," was the reply. "Pshaw! what nonsense," she returned, "no one has refused it this evening, and I don't intend to allow you to be the first..."

would gladly do anything else for you, but that I can not do." So saying he bowed and turned away. "Never mind, Emma, I will see you home," said a young man standing near...

Mr. B. was married and established in a prosperous business, and by degrees the incident of his parting with Emma was almost forgotten. One day a man with whom he had a slight acquaintance, came into his store and asked for employment...

While he stood smiling at their delight the mother burst into tears; and exclaimed: "Oh, Mr. B., can you forgive me?" "What do you mean?" he asked in astonishment...

THE AWKWARD CHILD.

BY MRS. MARGARET E. SANGSTER.

"Do turn out your toes, Maria," said Mrs. Ames, as Maria, her eleven-year-old daughter, came in from school...

The child's countenance took on a sullen expression, but she made no reply. Seating herself at the window she began to prepare her lessons for the ensuing day...

"I do take a walk about dusk," Maria answered pleasantly; indeed everybody answered Aunt Phebe pleasantly, for good nature has a winning way of its own...

"I must bid you good-bye, then, Emma, if it comes to that," he said, sorrowfully. "I would gladly do anything else for you, but that I can not do." So saying he bowed and turned away.

"Elizabeth, you will pardon me, but I fear you are making Maria unhappy. And she is a very attractive child!" "Attractive, Aunt Phebe! How can you say so? You see for yourself how big and ungainly she is growing, and she never knows what to do with her hands and feet..."

"She is obedient, truthful, and faithful to her duties, is she not?" "Oh! yes, but then, Aunt Phebe, her disposition is so sullen. She pouts when I find fault with her, and that puts me quite out of patience..."

Are not many who have laid upon them the responsibility of caring for young people making the mistake of Mrs. Ames? In their anxiety to do the very best things for their children, and have them excel in everything which is desirable, they keep up an incessant monotony of deprecation and reproach...

"NO!"

"No!" Clear, sharp, and ringing, with an emphasis which could not fail to arrest attention. "I don't often hear such a negative as that," remarked one gentleman to another as they were passing the playground...

They moved on a few steps, pausing by an open gate near which a group of lads were discussing some exciting question.

"I'm willing everybody should hear what I've got to say about it. I won't take anything that don't belong to me, and I won't drink cider anyway..."

"Well, anyway, you needn't speak so loud and tell everybody about it," was responded impatiently to this declaration.

"I'm willing everybody should hear what I've got to say about it. I won't take anything that don't belong to me, and I won't drink cider anyway..."

"All right, then, I will call for them, and you may call at my house for the pay."

The late Bishop Wilberforce of England was noted from boyhood for his ready wit. Anecdotes, current in English society, show him to have had much of the power of Sidney Smith in brilliant repartee and sudden sallies of humor.

A NOBLE OFFERING. The Superintendent of one of the street-car railways leading out of New York into the country, told a touching story to a friend the other day, which found its way into a city paper...

How much more tender and true is such a memorial of the beloved dead than a pretentious monument, or even a painted church-window, beautiful though they be!

Surely, if the dead can look back on earth, they are better pleased to know that kind, living deeds are done in their name, than to see them emblazoned on cold stone in forgotten grave-yards.

"IT WON'T HURT YOU IF YOU LET IT ALONE."

"Liquor won't hurt you if you let it alone," said one, with a sneer, to another who was making a strong fight to have it kept out of town by law.

"But liquor does hurt thousands who let it alone, who hate it utterly, and never set foot in a saloon."

Our boys are to be our future law makers. Let them look on liquor licenses just as they would on a license to commit any other sort of crime. All these and far more are included in every permit to sell rum.

A RUNSELLER'S STORY.

A man named Stacy, the owner of a splendid drinking-saloon in New York, signed the pledge lately and closed his house. Hearing that a party of lads had formed themselves into a temperance society, he went to them and gave them his experience as a runseller.

"I sold liquor," said Mr. Stacy, "for eleven years—long enough for me to see the beginning and end of its effects. I have seen a man take his first glass of liquor in my place, and afterwards fill the grave of a suicide..."

"No, no," he would say, "I never touch it. Thanks all the same." Presently, rather than seem churlish, he would take a glass of cider or harmless lemonade.

fruitless warnings, rushed up-stairs, came in hand, prepared for sharp action. Young Wilberforce was nearest the door, and seemed doomed to be the first victim. But, quick as lightning, he caught a Jewish boy by the collar, swung him round with back to the enraged teacher, and said, with a merry twinkle in his eye...

WHY PEOPLE DRINK.—Mr. A. drinks because his doctor has recommended him to take a little. Mr. B., because his doctor has ordered him not, and he hates quackery.

KEEPING THE HEAD CLEAN.—A distinguished physician who had spent much time at quarantine, said that a person whose head was thoroughly washed every day, rarely took contagious diseases, but where the hair was allowed to become dirty and matted, it was hardly possible to escape infection.

A CURE FOR EARACHE.—There is hardly any ache, to which children are subject, so bad to bear and difficult to cure as the earache. But there is a remedy never known to fail. Take a bit of cotton batting, put on it a pinch of black pepper, gather it up and tie it, dip in sweet oil and insert it in the ear.

CHARACTER is power; it makes friends, creates funds, draws patronage and support, and opens a sure way to honor, wealth and happiness.

To rejoice in the happiness of others is to make it our own; to produce it is to make it more than our own.

GOOD nature is more amiable than beauty, and more agreeable than wit.
