AN OASIS.

BY MRS. M. E. H. EVERETT.

After the last hope fainting died, When only duty's stern command Could urge the weary, tortured feet Across the burning sand!

Like great brown wings the palm leaves swing Above a little flashing stream, That, breaking from a rock, drips down, A pool, with dawn agleam.

A violet blossoms at its brink, And green blades tremble; can it be? The wide llanos all unroll Their tangled blooms to me!

This palm-grove is my forest free, Where trackless shadows spread so wide, That all earth's weary hearted ones May in its peace abide.

Whatever tides of ocean bear, The wondrous fright of snowy wings, This little fountain to my feet With wavering ripples bring.

What wide, majestic rivers sweep Along green valleys Eden fair, With rythmic voices day and night, Calling and answering there.

These all are mine; the lapsing waves That break against the golden sand, Bring unto me the bounteous cheer Of every happy land.

Alone, I fought the hot simoon, And struggled o'er the desert drear; But all the holy caravans Left tender greetings here!

Fear not, his angels camp about; "Behold, at night he giveth song;" And here they carved their battle cry, " Quit ye like men—be strong."

A few green trees, a flower or two, A tiny pool of water clear-Yet all the lands by seas engirt Have brought to me their cheer!

This is not mine abiding place, Nor may I long my march delay; God gave this for the pilgrim's strength And comfort by the way.

But oft shall memory's feet return,
When evening brings her glad release,
To pluck these fruits of thankfulness, And quaft the springs of peace!

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(Regular Correspondence.) WASHINGTON, D. C., March 3, 1883.

The Capitol is, by far, the most popular resort in Washington this week, and the evening sessions of Congress are the most attractive to visitors, for then the galleries are packed with strangers accompanied by their city friends. The house draws the largest crowds. Buncombe and parrot speeches are the rule, which with monkey gesticulation, make so good a show that the spectators get the worth of their money, since the seats are free. They enter heartily into the spirit of the turbulance below, which has reached its climax this week, in a perfect uproar of noisy, stormy, wholly unintelligible discussion. At times, nearly every member will be on his feet, and two dozen of them addressing the chair at the same time, amid cheers, applause and laughter, which render not only their own words, but there are now 66 at 48 places. At that time the utterances of the chair inaudible. Of course the chairman refuses to recognize building funds amounting to $73,313 36 any one until they can come to order, but no more. Then but one railroad branch. Our any one until they can come to order, but no recognition is asked for or desired. But, in spite of all this fun and fury, these last days of the forty-seventh Congress will never be remembered by the soon departing members with unmixed pleasure. Home, rest and relaxation will doubtless (for a time at least) be a boon to all of them, for their souls are being sorely tried now by a train of grievances following close upon their heels and dogging every step, in the shape of thousands of constituents just arrived in the city, aided by thousands of others already here, and all wanting a thousand little matters attended to before Congress adjourns. These pilgrims are from every section of the United States, from Maine to Texas, from Florida to California; each has his pet project. It may be the passage of a little bill, or the obtainment of a little office, but no matter how small to the rest of the world, it is a life This year we have a German Secretary at our and death scheme to him, and at this high pressure stage of the session he asks his congressman to run it through at once. Every Senator and Member is ransacking his brain for invention to elude this ubiquitous mob, which in turn is manœuvring how to intercept him on his way from his bed room to his breakfast table, and at each successive stolen slumbers even being haunted by visions | retaries has been given due attention by your of his vigilant pursuers. When he starts for the Capitol he is tugged, pulled, buttonholed and talked at until constrained to break away by force and take horse-car or carriage as his case may be. When he arrives at the Capitol he has to run another gauntlet before he can reach the cloakroom. Once upon the floor, he finds half a dozen of the privileged class, the ex-Congressmen, waiting to make other impossible requests. Every few minutes he is handed a card from some influential person from his own State, (perhaps his next door neighbor when at home), for whom he has the highest regard, and who can not, with politeness and safety to his political existence, be denied the "few words" that invariably lengthen into an interview of fifteen or twenty minutes. He tries to glance at the letters on his desk, but his fellow members surround him and ask his assistance in furthering their projects, for each is in turn assailed in the same way. He is forced to listen over and over again to the same questions, requests and inquiries as to the probable result of the cherished scheme, until his once active brain is addled and his clear understanding muddled. Truly, the last days of the Congressman are hard.

Washington will undergo a great change in its general crowd and aspect between the fourth and fifth days of March. Many of the Senators and Representatives will leave the city with their families on Sunday, havfor that day. Political life in Washington ciency, and adopt such new methods as exist said to exercise a most demoralizing inis said to exercise a most demoralizing influence upon the average Congressman by tate over the ephemeral character of political influence. The city now so abounds in greatness, that you rub against it at all public places, jostle it on the street corners, confront it on the Avenue, see it everywhere; but much of it is on the point of vanishing, to return to its original insignificance, and will leave no trace or footprint here.

THE NEW YORK YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN AS-

Men's Christian Association held, last week, at Newburgh, N. Y., is said to have been a very interesting gathering. We give below some extracts from the report of the Executive Committee, which we hope all our young people will read:

The State Association of the Young Men's Christian Associations was formed during the year 1875, and a State Secretary was engaged to devote his entire time to this cause. What is the result? Then there were 54 associations, now there are 91. Then there were 16 General Secretaries at 12 places; now we have 14 valued at $841,600, and Railroad Committee will report during this Convention from 14 railroad branches and 16 secretaries working exclusively among railroad men. Then, no district organization. Reports will be presented here from each of the 10 District Committees of conventions held, visits made, and the excellent work done by them. There was no specific work done for commercial travelers. Now many Associations are putting forth special exertions for them, and many of the travelers themselves, who are Christian men, are deeply engaged in such efforts as are available for their companions. In regard to this subject a detailed report will also be presented.

Then but two of our colleges had organizations for the work. Now, at Cornell, Rochester. Syracuse, and Madison Universities, Hamilton College and West Point, Young Men's Christian Associations are in successful operation. Then but little was done among German speaking young men. among them at New York, Albany, Syracuse, Rochester, and Buffalo.

The most important step any Association can take toward permanance and influence is to secure a building of its own. As already noted, 14 Associations have buildings.

Through the munificent bequest of Mr. Sherman, the Association at Watertown has a block valued at $60,000. At Buffalo, a building costing $75,000 is nearly completed. $60,000 of which is secured. The Troy Railroad Association has an $18,000 building with a debt of only $4,000. Our friends at Newburgh have nearly completed their handsome home, which is to cost $20,000. A Rome, one costing $16,000 is in use, $8,000 are paid on it, and rentals are sufficient to pay interest, taxes, and insurance, besides $400 toward current expenses. Dr. Sylvester Willard, a public-spirited citizen of Auburn, has subscribed $10,000 for a similar purpose, provided $15,000 additional can be raised. This amount is nearly all pledged, with every prospect that the remainder will be obtained. The total amount of property acquired by the Associations this year i $176,000.

STATE SECRETARY.

In all the work of your committee Rev. George A. Hall, our State Secretary, has been untiring in his efforts towards its success. The secretarial changes have required much time and voluminous correspondence. He has made 115 visits at 64 places, attended eight district conventions, four meetings of the State Committee, a railroad conference at Springfield, Mass., a Secretaries' convention at New Haven, a college conference at Princeton, and State conventions, by special request, in Tennessee and Colorado, in addition to his correspondence and office The Annual Convention of the Young work. From the report of the Treasurer it will be seen that the total amount we have expended is $3,331 37. We need the means to put into the field an Assistant Secretary who can remain with some association for a week or longer. By such assistance many would be greatly helped and some now alto gether inactive could be brought to real usefulness. Our present Secretary can not devote the time needed without neglecting other equally important points. We shall need $4,500 to accomplish all this.

We urge all Associations to become incorporated according to the State law, that they may be able to hold property.

It is necessary that special attention be directed to the importance of distinctive work for German speaking young men. We also suggest that special efforts be made for the Chinese in our cities and towns, and will be glad to furnish suggestions for work among them.

While we rejoice that so much is being done in this department of Christian effort we consider the work yet in its infancy, and hope the time is not far distant when every young Christian man will deem it his privilege and duty to consecrate himself to Christian work among his companions.

Special organized effort should be made in every town large enough to support a saloon, and the work prosecuted so vigorously that there will be added to the church daily such as shall be saved.

MARBLE-TIME AND MARBLES.

There are kite-time, top-time, ball-time, and marble-time, and every boy appears to know the proper season for each of these sports. What are the exact dates of these seasons we do not know; but we do know that a boy of proper principles would no more be found playing marbles in top-time than he would be caught in some mean act. If we could learn the early history of marbles, we should find that they were played that boys before the Christian era had their marble-time, just as you do now. THE KINGDOM OF HEAVEN.

BY JOSEPHINE TYLER.

Psalm 72: 16.

I dreamed that a child's soft, gentle hand Planted a wonderful seed In the topmost soil of a mountain-land: And he knew not that an angel-band Waited to watch the deed.

The seed was one of the rarest known, There was but a handful found; I saw, though rare, they were meekly sown, Sometimes with tears, and often alone In cold and rugged ground.

Some hands that sowed a kernel or two Were jeweled, tender, and fair; But the mighty who cast such seeds were few. Some hands were women's, and trembled, too; And most were hands of care.

Yet not a seed in the earth was placed, In darkness or in the day, But the sheen of an angel's wing I traced, And oft there stole to the mountain-waste Sweet strains from far away.

A throng was planting in vales below Seeds of a different kind: The poor and the haughty toiled to and fro; But, though their harvests were swift to grow, The world with hunger pined.

Slow was the rise of the mountain grain; And oft some sower's hand Lay folded low, and his work seemed vain, Ere fell "the early and latter rain, Or sunshine warmed the land.

But the heavenly watchers never slept, By long delay beguiled; A record of every seed they kept, Of the toiler's sigh, the loan tear wept The effort of the child.

Late in the season, the handful grew With a wondrous, vast increase There was corn for the hills and cities, too; "Good will!" rang out from the heavenly blue, And men sang songs of Peace. -Helping Hand.

THE DEACON'S EXPERIENCE.

AS RELATED BY HIMSELF.

I was born in New England. My father was a member of the Baptist church in the village. He was a man who believed in looking out for number one. He owned the farm which had been managed by his father and his father's father. This farm had supof the church. He gave twenty-five dollars for the support of the gospel, every year. All his children were given a fair education. They inherited from their father a good degree of selfishness. He had taught them to be very careful as to how they spent any money and to be sure their investments would yield the largest possible income. Everybody said I was "a chip of the old block," and with these qualities I left my Eastern home twenty years ago to come to the West. I succeeded in getting a farm very reasonably. Crops were excellent the first year and I was able to build me a comfortable house and have a little to spare which I invested in farming implements. The second year's crops were even better than the first. I was comfortably situated. As the years passed by, children came to gladden our hearts and home. No man and wife had more reason for thankfulness than we. As settlers came into the neighborhood we felt the need of church privileges, and soon a missionary from our Home Mission Society located near us. Meetings were held in the old log school-house, but it was the place where many were born again. Of course we ought to do something for the support of the gospel. I pledged ten dollars the first year and we raised in cash and donations about two hundred dollars for our minister. The following Winter there was a powerful revival and our church membership was doubled.

About this time a Baptist minister from New England located a claim in our neighborhood. He talked with a few of us and said he would be willing to preach for us if we would raise him fifty dollars a year. He was very generous hearted and said while we were getting our farms into shape, it would help us not to have to pay out so much for preaching. We talked it over and finally decided to let our home mission man go and employ our New England preacher. I tell you we did miss the pastoral visits of Elder Williams, but thought we could do without pastoral visitation until we had all got our farms paid for and pretty well improved. That Winter there was no revival and the young people assembled two or three times a week for a dance but did not care anything for the worship of the Lord. A spiritual coldness came over the members of the church, and in less than a year our neighborhood was a Sabbath-breaking and pleasure seeking community.

We sold our farm; for we did not wish to bring up our children with such surroundings, and moved into the growing railroad town a few miles away. We took our church letters and united with the Baptist church recently organized. What we realized from our sale enabled us to buy a good corner lot on which we age, of Boston, in a recent sermon on the

I am now entering upon the year 1882, my business last year was more prosperous then ever. As I have been balancing the accounts in my Ledger recently, I took a piece of blank paper and wrote along the top: DEACON HOWELL.

In account with the Lord.

To pardon from sin, A hope for the future world, Good health, A prosperous business, Attendance upon divine service, The joy of Christian children, Continual increase in value of land, 100 or more acres of good farm lands.

I looked the piece of paper over very carefully and was compelled to admit that the amounts placed to my credit do not balance any one of the debits. The question flashed into my mind, "How much owest thou unto my Lord?"

I took my Bible and learned that Paul says, "Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in the treasury as God hath prospered him." Then, I said it is my business to lay by something every week for the Lord's treasury. The wise man says: "Honor the Lord with thy subincrease." Then it is my business to give when one thus addressed the other: first to the Lord. That seems all right, for all the money in the world belongs to the when they hear you have invited Maggie Lord (but what a sight of it is stolen). And all nations shall call you blessed, for ye shall be a delightsome land, saith the Lord of hosts." When I had finished reading this passage I said I have been a robber, for I haven't begun to give the Lord a tenth of all the money I have received; but have looked after my own comfort and ease and never dared to figure how much of my money belonged to the Lord. Then I resolved to give this year ten cents of every dollar I receive. But if a tenth belongs to God, I ought not to say very much about given till I pay him what he calls for. Then I wondered if these verses did not contain the explanation of the great spiritual dearth in all our churches. Not one of us in a thousand "honors the Lord with the first fruits of all our increase," and if we brought all the tenths into the Lord's treasury I verily believe the blessing would come. I again looked over my "account with the Lord." The first three debits I can not in any way balance. The fourth is where I must begin. I took my cash book and found the footing for the first week of this year to be $576 57, the amount of the Lord's money I had received. The wise man says, "Honor the Lord with the first fruits of all thine increase," and Paul says to do it on the first day of the week, and I hear the Lord saying, "Bring all the tithes into my treasury." Then a tenth of the first week's receipts is $57 65. Just here this thought was suggested: You owe several parties for goods and the bills are coming due in a few days," and then "you must look out to supply your family's needs." Then a terrible fight occurred. God's word arrayed Mr. Charles W. Conrad, in a statement the discussion of the temperance question, knew not what to do. > THE GREAT COMMANDMENT.—Jesus said, 'The first of all the commandments is, Hear O Israel; The Lord our God is one Lord; and thou shalt love the Lord thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength; this is the first commandment." And in Matt. 22:38, Jesus calls this, "the great commandment." Now how can we love the Lord our God with all our heart, soul, mind, and strength, and refuse to obey his commandment to keep his holy Sabbath day, the seventh day of the week? God says it is his holy day; he sanctified that day at creation, and rested on that day; moreover he tells us in his book to keep the seventh day holy, and a day of rest; but man steps in and says you must keep the first day of the week. When told it is not God's day, he says, O, I know the seventh day is the Jewish Sabbath. He says the Sabbath was changed, forgetting that Jesus says one jot or tittle of the law shall not fail till all be fulfilled; and again, 'In vain do ye worship me, teaching for doctrine the commandments of men."-Sabbath Advocate.

> "AMEN."—Once in a most lively prayermeeting the preacher who was presiding prayed: "O Lord, help all of us to trust thee with our whole souls!" And a hundred voices responded, "Amen!" Some also shouted, "Lord, grant it!" and "Amen, amen," all over the room. Encouraged by such sympathy, he went on: "Help us all to trust thee wholly with our bodies!" then the people cried, "Amen!" as heartily as before. Now the exalted sense of conse cration rose to its height, and he prayed again: "Oh, help us to trust thee wholly with our money!" And it is actually reported in private circles since that not a man had a word to say then.

This admission reminds us of the case of Dr. Min the town of M-, in the State of Illinois, a number of years ago. The wife of a certain Dr. K-, homepath, died, and the rumor got circulated around town that Dr. K — had killed his wife. Dr. M — took up the report, and said, "Yes, Dr. Kkilled his wife; I know he killed her; there is no doubt about it!" On the strength of these statements, the Prosecuting Attorney had Dr. K arrested on a charge of wife murder, but not a witness called knew anything about the case. Finally Dr. Mwas called and duly sworn, when the attorney said: "Dr. M-, will you state to the cour

So it seems that the liquor manufacturers and their attorneys can say anything they please before the public, for political effect, but when they get to the "mourner's bench," as Mr. Conrad did, then they must tell the truth, and the truth is that prohibition is utter ruin to the liquor traffic. Let the good work go on. We would like to see a few more of the brewers of our city brought to the "mourner's bench," for then we get the truth out of them in regard to the effect of prohibition on their business .- Cimeter.

THE MODERATE DRINKER.

The following from the Wheaten Illinoisan is worthy of careful reading:

"Judge Coleridge said: 'There is scarcely a crime before me that is not directly or indirectly caused by strong drink.' William Penn gave utterance to the following: 'Al excess is ill, but drunkenness is of the worst sort. It spoils health, dismounts the mind unmans men. It reveals secrets, is quarrelsome, lascivious, impudent, dangerous, and mad. He that is drunk is not a man, because he is for so long void of reason, that distinguishes man from a beast.' If 000 less money was spent for beer. drunkenness is so terrible in its consequences and results concerning man, why should not all precaution possible be taken to avert this evil? Why should not the 'moderate drinker' pause in his course, and reflect on the consequences, that will probably, or even possibly result to him from his present temperate use of rum. Although the remark has often been repeated that every drunkard has at some time in his life been a moderate drinker, it is nevertheless a truth of so much force and importance, that it may be well to repeat it again. The moderate drinker, when questioned on the propriety of the use of rum as a beverage, replies substantially that he is master of the situation, that he is master of himself, and knows when he has 'taken enough.' It is doubtless true that every inebriate has previous to his inebriation said about the same thing, and nothing can be plainer than that the path in which the moderate drinker travels, leads to drunken ness. This traveler may or may not step into his grave before he becomes a notorious drunkard. However that may be, the work of destruction goes on, in the system, and this man's name is enrolled in the rum army, and the banner he carries has 'rum' inscribed thereon. THE NEW YORK CONVENTION.

The Prohibition Convention which was held on Tuesday of last week at the Baptist Temple, Brooklyn, was a success. The meetings during the day were presided over by Rev. A. G. Lawson, and resolutions were passed and speeches were made by Drs. Fulton, Morse, Wells, and Rev. Messrs. Hughes, Simmons, Boole, Hubbell, and Mrs. Perrine, Partington, and others. The mass meeting in the evening was addressed by ex-Governor St. John, of Kansas, Drs. Fulton and Cuyler. It was a grand and inspiring rally in the interest of a cause in which every Christian should be zealously interested. The temperance people of this State will not rest till an amendment to its constitution is secured, forever prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage. This is the one grand result aimed at. Joseeph Cook in a late lecture said: "All that United Protestant Christendom together raises annually for missions, would not pay the liquor bill of the United States for three days, nor that of the British Islands for And yet the liquor bill of these two great countries for one day would support hundreds of missionaries for years on the foreign field. The total sales of the dramshops of Chicago in one year amount to $10,-000,000. How many institutions of benevolence this sum of money would support for one year! This is not all. The whisky monopoly is simply enormous. It can buy votes, and shape legislation. It can debauch the public conscience, and throw down every safeguard to our social life. To-day the poison of alcohol is entering every artery of the life of our Republic. Is it not time for Christians to awake, and lend a helping hand? How weak in her efforts is the church against this colossal evil! Why does she not rise in her might to arrest this social pestilence which walks in darkness and vastes at noonday?—Watch Tower.

"AN EDUCATED MINISTRY."

BY THE REV. CHARLES F. THWING.

The question which President Eliot dis cussed, in a recent address in Harvard University, upon the education of ministers. was a narrow one. It had no reference to the cultivation of piety, earnestness, or other spiritual qualities. It did not attempt to prove that the ministry should be educated; prove that the ministry should be educated; accepted a similar professorship in Bowdoin neither did it deny that an educated ministry accepted a similar professorship in Bowdoin College. Today the clerical is only one of several pro fessions which necessitate a liberal training; and the minister is now brought into constant competition with literature and with the press. The condition of society has also suffered great changes. A century ago corporations had not come into existence. Temperance, divorce, and heredity, were questions not discussed. Chemistry, geology, botany, and other sciences were unknown to the people. The public mind has, moreover, undergone a change respecting the position of the clergyman. He is no longer regarded as possessed of a sort of divine right Whatever influence he exerts is considered as coming rather from his character than from his position. He is now subject to criticism from which he was once free. It is not to be doubted that the rise of physical science has produced a change in the view which the public entertain of the ministry. It has brought out into strong relief the uncandid spirit which prevails to at least a certain degree among clergymen. The temptations to intellectual dishonesty are of greater force in the clerical than in any other calling. This fact furnishes the reason, that deters young men of first-rate ability from adopting it.

Yet the ministry has many and great attractions. It offers large prizes in the form of salaries; and these large prizes attract young men. Channing and Emerson agree in calling it the finest of all the professions. Modern society is better worth preaching to ics there. Having pursued studies in the than society a hundred years ago. PAUL A. CHADBOURNE.

The Rev. Dr. Paul A. Chadbourne, President of the Massachusetts State Agricultural College, and ex-President of Williams College, died Feb. 23d.

Dr. Chadbourne was born on October 21, 1823, in North Berwick, Me., where he worked on a farm in Summer, and in a carpenter shop in Winter, until he was seventeen years of age. Then he removed to Great Falls, N. H., where he studied medicine and was a clerk in a drug store. Next he entered Phillips Academy at Exeter, N. H., with $23 as his sole wealth. There he fitted for college, defraying his expenses chiefly by work as a copyist of law and insurance papers. In 1848 he was graduated from Williams College at the head of his class. After teaching school at Freehold, N. J., for a year, during which he began the study of theology; he continued that study in the Theological Institute of Connecticut, at Windsor. Then he successively became Principal of the High School at Great Falls, N. H., a tutor in Williams College, and the Principal of East Windsor Academy, Connecticut. In 1853 he was appointed Professor of Chemistry and 1859, without relinquishing his position, he seven years afterward, being also a Professor in the Berkshire Medical College, Massachusetts. In addition he was for thirteen years Chemical Lecturer in Mount Holyoke Šemi nary, Massachusetts. In 1869 he was chosen President of Will iams College, and filled the office for nine years with great credit. At the beginning of last year he was elected President of the Massachusetts Agricultural College.

Dr. Chadbourne was a delegate at-large from Massachusetts to the Republican Nation-Chairman of the Massachusetts Republican State Convention, and in the same year he was presidential-elector-at-large from the State. He succeeded Professor Agassiz as a member of the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture. He was also chosen a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, the Royal Society of Northern Antiquities of Copenhagen, the Albany Institute, and many other associations. The degrees of D. D. and LL.D were conferred upon him by Amherst College, and the degree of M. D. by the Berkshire Medical College. He was the "Natural Theology," "Instinct," and "Relations of Natural History." He was employed as chief editor of the work entitled The Public Service of the State of New York," and he published many pamphlets, one of which, a tribute to the memory of President Garfield, especially attracted attention and praise. Dr. Chadbourne was also Williamstown, Mass., and a director of the North Adams (Mass.) Savings Bank, the Berkshire Life Insurance Company, and other similar institutions.—Elmira Advertiser.

SUNDAY AGITATION IN CHICAGO.

An effort is now being made to revive and enforce the Sunday law in Chicago. We are glad of it. Every effort of this kind is sure Lord—the seventh day—to the notice of the people. We rejoice in every step, whatever the motive may be, which extends the knowledge of God's Word in regard to his downtrodden commandment. Bro. Nordyke, of Kankakee, Ill., has sent us an article published by the "Chicago Sabbath Association" in the Chicago Tribune. It is entitled, "An Argument in Favor of a Compulsatory Observance of the First day of the is interesting:

"SUNDAY HISTORY.—In the year 321 Constantine established the Sabbath [established the day of the sun] by exempting it from being judicial. This, somewhat modthe United States. The early laws of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Georgia, South Carolina, and Virginia, compelled attendance at church, the Massachusetts law (1782) providing that such attendance was not obligatory where there was no place of worship which the person could conscientiously attend. When the Federal Government was formed and the separation of church and State was fully organized, the earlier Sunday laws were modified in conformity with this principle."

Sunday history, as far as Sunday law is concerned, is here commenced at the right point—the decree of Constantine. The Tribune properly corrects the statement that Constantine established the Sabbath, by inserting in brackets, "established the day of the sun." It will be seen in these references to history that the enforcement of Sunday was always a usurpation over men's consciences, compelling them to observe religious tenets in which they did not believe; always an essential element in the union of church and State.—Signs of the Times.

He says:

"The observance of Sunday as a religious festival by Protestants implies a recognition of the authority of the Catholic church in spiritual matters, as the Bible is silent on that matter. A correspondent invites attention to an editorial published in the Sabbath Recordof life. If these be right all will be right. If they be wrong, no amount of outward conformity to the forms of duty can make a man right. Following this mode of speaking, we say of the man who knows the truth but does not obey it, "His head is better than his heart. MARTYRDOM.

It was a favorite saying with the old Church Fathers that "the blood of the martyrs was the seed of the Church." The light in which martyrdom was held by the old worthies was doubtless too intense, and the yearning which many of the early Christians had for its sufferings and subsequent glory, was, no doubt, the result of a fervid imagination quickened to intensity by a zeal to follow, literally, in the footsteps of their divine Lord and Master, and the expectation of the im mediate reward, rather than a clear comprehension of life's true mission. And yet we shall see that there are good reasons for the saying quoted above. It is a question of some importance whether a little infusion of the "stuff of which martyrs are made," into the Church of to-day, would not enable it to bear more and better fruit.

1. What is a martyr? The Greek word rived is elsewhere translated witness. When a sentiment as much stronger than that of Jesus said to the disciples "Ye are witnesses of these things," he said to them, in substance, "Ye are my martyrs." When those faithful men went out and began to preach NAMES for the "Quarterly" continue to the name of Jesus to an unbelieving world something. As we look upon it even at this How many of us, if it were made a capital our peace? We should probably seek to ease our conscience with the sophistry that, for ourselves, we could worship God secretly, and in our own hearts as well as publicly, and thus save ourselves and our friends the distress and shame of our martyrdom. But where would be our witness for Christ with Referring to the article on Hymn Books, the martyrdom left out? If the Christian

3. The first and most necessary result of the persecution which the apostolic Chrisrapid spread of the gospel message, and the equally rapid growth of the Chrisples were all scattered abroad except the apostles, and they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word. Two things clearly enter here as the instrumental causes of the early planting and rapid maturing of the church: the scattering of the disciples, and their steadfast proclamation of the gospel message in their dispersion. PARSON.

AMONG OUR NEIGHBORS!

It affords me pleasure to honor Christ, by the following account of his work in Verona, N. Y., for the readers of the RECORDER: About the middle of December, P. A. Burdick, the deservedly popular temperance village and vicinity. During the first three weeks of this work, some 400 took the pledge, determining to make the pilgrimage of life upon the plane of sobriety. Among these were many whom rum had destroyed financially and socially, but who are now clothed and in their right mind, together, with many others, mostly among the young, who have taken the pledge of total abstinence, adopting the principle of the adage, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." And as the source of financial, domestic, and social ruin lost its power, the streams of prosperity began to run in all these directions, multiplying happy hearts and homes. And thus the work of temperance reform, like John the Baptist, prepared the way for the coming of the Lord among the people, in his power to save. And for the last five weeks, ending with the middle of February, these meetings took on the evangelical character, and were conducted by Mr. Burdick with the view to the salvation of souls. The two churches in this place, Methodist Episcopal and Presbyterian, were united from the first, the meetings alternating weekly between them. The result has been glorious. About 110 have found Jesus in personal salvation. Many backsliders have been reclaimed, and the membership of these churches quickened and greatly encouraged. All praise to the blessed Jesus. O that he would come thus to all our villages. J. CLARKE.

The joint communion between the Shiloh and Marlboro Churches was held with us, on Feb. 17th. Bro. O. D. Williams, of Marlboro, preached the sermon. The attendance was good, and all agreed that it was a profitable season.

Last Sabbath we enjoyed a visit from Bro. Main, who was returning from Alabama, where he had been to look after a new field, recently opened to us, whence had come a Macedonian cry for help. We were greatly cheered by the good tidings he brought us. Our prayer-meetings are well attended, and real seasons of refreshing. The Sabbath-school is officered entirely by young men this year, and is doing a good work. Let the churches bring their young men to the front, and place responsibilities upon them, while they can have the fathers to counsel them; and let the fathers rally around, and encourage the "boys," if they want strong men to fill the places they must soon leave.

CHICAGO.

During the last missionary quarter, our Sabbath services have been well attended by our people and almost every Sabbath some strangers have come in. When I have been absent from the city, Col. G. R. Clarke has occasionally preached for me, and when there has been no preaching, the time has been occupied in other ways. The Medical Colleges are closing their Winter's work, so we shall miss the presence and excellent help of some of our medical students who have been in the city. A son of Bro. Davis, of Davis Junction, Ill., graduated last week, we are told, with honor to himself and his college. M. J. Whitford graduted this week carrying off several honors; one first prize, two second prizes, and two honorable mentions. George Post graduates this month from another college as the Valedictorian of his class and with what other honor I am not informed. We ought to be a pretty passed is $229,327,000 against $295,509,000 healthy people out here in the West, the way Chicago turns out Seventh-day Baptist Doctors. We hope to keep some of them in the city, for their are expecting to obtain places during the Spring and Summer in hospital and dispensary work. That will be good for them and for our cause here too.

The mission school has made a good record in attendance the last quarter. The highest league, have decided to hold the next land attendance was Jan. 6th, 92 present; the lowest, Feb. 3d, 49 present. The average attendance for the quarter was $66\frac{2}{3}$. This pleases us much, but what gratifies us more is marked progress in good order and behavior. To us and our school that means something.

We have had of late some opposition to of $37 30, and the encouraging reflection | the school on the part of a Jew. This Jew says that it is contrary to their rules for their children to go to a school or to any religious services where there is a cross put up in any form, or where the New Testament is taught. He appears to be intolerantly opposed to Christianity, not only regarding it as a false religion but as an arrogant imposition. The opposition, we think, is nearly overcome by the faithful Since the payment of the church debt, the | visits of the officers and teachers. THE FIRST COMET OF THE YEAR.—A little before seven o'clock on Friday evening last, while Prof. Lewis Swift, Director of the Warner Observatory, Rochester, N. Y., was scanning the western sky, he discovered a brilliant comet located in the constellation of Pegasus, near the star Beta. The new comet is moving eastward and is very bright. This is the first comet discovered during the present year and also the first discovery made by means of the new telescope of the Warner Observatory, which is the largest private telescope in the world.

WHOLESALE PRODUCE MARKET.

Review of the New York market for butter, cheese, etc., for the week ending March 3d, reported for the RECORDER, by David W. Lewis & Co., Produce Commission Merchants, No. 85 and 87 Broad Street, New York. Marking plates furnished

BUTTER.—Receipts for the week were 21,424 pack ages; exports, 4,025. Following is a copy of a postal sent to the butter dealers of this city under date of March 1st, the same having a bearing on the butter

Fancy Brands of Butterine. - We are now enabled o supply the trade with the fine stock formerly received from Western markets at prices as below: 60, 40, and 25 lb. ash tubs at 18 cents.

Catch weight rolls at 19 cents. Oleomargarine, 1st quality, in tubs. at 15 cents. 1 and 2 lb. rolls, 16 cts. 1 lb. prints, 16 cents.

The Brooklyn Dairy Co.

These butterine imitations compete with all butter of only fair quality, especially if not strictly fresh from the churn. To in part get rid of the competition, it is suggested that dairymen now hold back all the odd tubs of old butter they can, use it up at home, and supply their local demand of towns and villages, and make its use last late. Let the fresh come forward, but keep the old back, which will be just as good for home use up to June 1st, and thereby materially lessen the amount of it offered here. Fine fresh butter is so far ahead of Oleo that it is not in competition with it. There has been a number of dairymen in with dairies this week. A fancy Chenango 23 firkins and 28 tubs brought 20 and 25 cents. A good sound dairy was offered at 20 cents entire. A dairy of 26 Welch tubs sold at 18 cents, and a lot of 30 odd Welch tubs Fall and Winter make brought same price, and 50 tubs of Welch sold at 17 cents. A lot of butter returned from Germany sold by auction, 250 tubs at 11½ cents, and say 500 packages, damaged, at 6½ to 9½ cents. Fine last week's creamery make was in somewhat increased receipt.

CHEESE.—Receipts for the week were 12,700 boxes; exports, 12,004 boxes. The bottom of the market is well cleared (always a favorable sign), but prices for top qualities are paid reluctantly. Special export orders take some fancy cheese, but the bulk of shipments are of Winter made skims, which does not materially reduce the stocks here. Stock is in small compass, trade moderate. An Amazing Exhibit. The announcement that the Mutual Life Iusurance Company of New York has purchased the magnificent property known as the "Old Post Office," on which President Winston and his associated with the control of the control Office," on which President Winston and his associates intend erecting a commodious edifice absolutely needed for the convenient transaction of their business, which, long since outgrew their present accommodations, which will be at once an ornament to the metropolis, and a monument to the skill and tireless task which have brought the Company to the van of finance, naturally draws attention to the past as well as the present successes of the Institution.

tion to the past as well as the present successes of the Institution.

In April, 1863, the Board of Directors resolved to purchase the lots upon which the building occupied by the Company now stands. That was but twenty years ago, yet short as it is, it was long enough for a growth which is universally regarded as one of the marvels of modern finance. The contrast between the condition and business of the Company then and now is worth looking at.

Its assets then were five million dollars; now they are ninety-eight millions. The year's receipt then were a million and a half; in 1882 they were eighteen millions. The annual payments then were half a million, and last year they were fifteen millions. The amount at risk in 1863 was thirty-seven millions; now the sum is three hundred and thirty millions. The policies then in force numbered 12,981; and in 1882 they were 106,214. The number annually issued then was 1,833; and the number now written yearly, 11,416.

ber annually issued then was 1,833; and the number now written yearly, 11,416.

To men who are experts in figures, these almost fabulous sums tell clearly the story of fidelity, integrity, caution and skill. To the ordinary mind, their vastness is simply incomprehensible, but acutely suggestive. An expert in speaking of the wonderful growth of the pioneer company, said:

"The singular success of the Mutual of New York is largely due to the fact that it is conservatively managed by enterprising men. You hear of no losses in South America or the Isles of the Sea.

You find no extravagancies in Continental Europe You find no extravagancies in Continental Europe and no recklessness in the West Indies. Caution and discretion go hand and hand with vigilance and progress. No wonder the company leads the van."

RITCHEN ECONOMY.

Interesting Tests Made by the Government Chemist.

Dr. Edward G. Love, the present Analytical Chemist for the Government, has recently made some interesting experiments as to the comparative value of baking powders. Dr. Love's tests were made to determine what brands are the most economical to use, and as their capacity lies in their leavening power, tests were directed solely to ascertain the available gas of each powder. Dr. Love's report gives the following:

ONE YOUNG MAN'S "NO."

Many a weak youth has escaped temptation because a stronger companion said "no"—and many another has fallen because no such help was near. A "life-sketch" in the New York Ledger (by an eye-witness) details a scene in a hotel billiard-room, at a fashionable resort, where half-a-dozen young men were playing for money and "the drinks." An acquaintance having some errand to one of the players, came in, and was boisterously urged to make one of the party in the game and the bibulous indulgence.

"Bring another hot Scotch!"
"Not for me," said Harry, peremptorily, and with a bit of extra color in his face.

"Oh pshaw! You won't play?" "No; I don't wish to."

"Nor you won't drink a bumper with Johnny's hand.

"Jack, you are going too far. I would drink if I wanted it. You would not force a man to drink who is not thirsty?"

"Oh fudge; Harry, you're afraid to risk a dollar! You'd drink a hot Scotch or a glass of wine with us, if you dared to play. O, Hal, I didn't think you'd grown so

And now the young man's face flushed to "Boys, you have spoken freely to me; let me say a word to you in reply. I am timid, I confess. I am fearful; but you knowyou know very well-that I fear not the loss of a dollar. I will tell you presently what I do fear. Do you remember D—— H——?" naming a young man, who, not a year previously, had been apprehended, tried, and convicted of forgery and embezzlement to a large amount; and who was at that very time serving his penalty in State Prison. And, further, that young man-a trusted bookkeeper and cashier—had been intimate with these very youths.

"You remember him, I know," Harry continued; "and you can remember the time when as jovial and happy over his billiards and whisky, and his gambling, as you are now. Oh, do not wince! I call it by its right name. If it is not gambling, what is it? Ah, boys! if Dan had been a little fearful in those days, he might have been differently situated now."

He paused for a moment, looked around upon the players, and presently added, in a lower tone, and with deep solemnity:

"And now, boys, I'll tell you, frankly, of what I am afraid; I have a mother—you know whether she loves me or not-and I have a dear sister, looking to me for joy and comfort in life. I have, also, a business character; and, I trust, a broad, bright future before me. Must I tell you—I am afraid —I shrink in mortal dread from anything that can endanger these sacred interests. Not for all the wealth of all the world would I knowingly and willingly bow my dear mother's head in sorrow. And since even the appearance of evil may weaken the prop of a sterling character, I will try to avoid that. Now you understand me. Go on if you will, and enjoy yourself if you can. It would be misery for me to join you here.

"One word more. If anything of this interview should become known abroad, be sure that I did not tell it, for my lips will be closed when I go out from you."

He then called aside the young man whom he had come to see, who, after a brief private

"pot." The chief answered instantly, and without argument, by giving each man back his dollar. Then they put their heads to-gether, and after a brief confab, which I could not overhear, they left the place, leaving full one-half the drink in their glasses untouched.

Six months later I had occasion to spend another night at that same house, and during my sojourn I spoke to the host of the six young men whom I had seen engaged in that game of pool. He knew what I meant, because I had told him the story at the time.

He answered that three of those youths had not been seen in the billiard-room since that evening; two of them had occasionally dropped in together, and played a social game, but had neither put up money nor Rockford Watch, No. 30,319, bought of J. C. Bur-And then I thought of the personal influence of that young man. And the end is not yet. The end no man can see.

IT'S ALL THE LITTLE BOOK.

Something more than a year ago, as the writer was sitting in a railway carriage, a pleasant voice sang out:

"Paper, sir; paper, sir; morning paper,

There was nothing new in the words, nothing new to see a small boy with a package of papers under his arm; but the voice, so low and musical—its clear, pure tones mellow as a flute, tender as only love and sorrow could make them—called up hallowed memories. One look at the large, brown Phosphate and Tartaric Acid powders liberate their eyes, the broad forehead, the mass of nutbrown curls, the pinched and hollow cheeks, and his history was known.

"What is your name, my boy?" I asked, as, half-blind with tears, I reached out my hand for a paper.
"Johnny —;" the last name I did not

"Can you read?"

"Oh, yes; I've been to school a little," said Johnny, glancing out of the window to see if there was need of haste.

I had a little brother once, whose name was Johnny. He had the same brown hair and tender, loving eyes; and perhaps it was on this account I felt very much disposed to throw my arms around Johnny's neck, and to kiss him on his thin cheek. There was something pure about the child, standing Church Clerks will find them both convenient and economical modestly there in his patched clothes and little, half-worn shoes, his collar coarse, but spotlessly white, his hands clean and beautifully molded. A long, shrill whistle, however, with another, short and peremptory, and Johnny must be off. There was nothing to choose; my little Testament, with its neat binding and pretty steel clasp, was in Johnny's hand.

There was a moment—we were off. I strained my eyes out of the window after Johnny, but I did not see him; and, shutting them, I dreamed what there was in store for him-not forgetting His love and care for the destitute, tender-voiced boy.

A month since I made the same journey some purpose. It was a handsome face; for a moment's respite at one of the many and he looked really grand—noble—as he places on the way, what was my surprise to see the same boy-taller, healthier, with the same calm eyes and pure voice.

"I've thought of you, lady," he said; "I wanted to tell you it's all the little book." "What's all the little book, Johnny?"

"The little book has done it all. I carried. it home, and father read it. He was out of work then, and mother cried over it. At first I thought it was a wicked book to make them feel so bad; but the more they read it the more they cried, and it's all been different since. It's all the little book; we live in a better house now, and father don't drink, and mother says 'twill be all right again."

Dear little Johnny, he had to talk so fast; out his eyes were bright and sparkling, and and his brown face all aglow.

"I'm not selling many papers now, and father says maybe I can go to school this ear; the little book that told of Jesus and his love for poor, perishing men. What a change! A comfortable home; the man no more a slave to strong drink. Hope was in the hearts of the parents; health manufact the more a stave to strong arink. Hope was in the hearts of the parents; health mantled the cheeks of the children. No wonder Johnny's words came brokenly! From the gloom of despair to a world of light; from being poor and friendless, the little book told them of and iriendless, the little book told them of the work of t One mighty to save, the very Friend they being all the heirs at law, next of kin and creditors heart all love, all tenderness.

ANOTHER trial with oil has recently been made at Aberdeen harbor, at a time when the waves were dashing over the pier. In twenty minutes 280 gallons of seal-oil were pumped into the water, and the breakers were reduced to small tumbling waves. s.

It is the uniform opinion of those who have investigated the subject that the condition of the atmosphere most condusive to health and comfort, is when the temperature is from sixty-five to seventy degrees Fahrenheit, and the relative humidity sixtyfive to seventy-five per cent. of saturation.

At the recent photographic exhibition in London, there was exhibited a new form of lamp for taking portraits at night. Everybody knows what a wonderful light can be obtained by burning a few inches of magnesium wire. In this lamp the same medium is employed, but instead of being consumed in the ordinary way it is burned in an atmosphere of pure oxygen. The light given is sufficiently intense to allow of a picture being taken in a fraction of a second.

A curious observation by Leonardo de Vinci has been communicated to La Nature by M. de Rochas. It is found in one of his MSS. in the library of the institute. "If you give a nail," he says, "a great many blows with a hammer to drive it into a board, this will be long and difficult; and if you attach the nail to the hammer with wax, you may drive it wholly into the board at one blow equal to the others." On reflection, this will be seen to be due to the fact that when the nail is attached to the hammer it is already animated with a velocity equal to that of the hammer when it comes in contact with the board; whereas, when it is struck there is a double loss of kinetic energy in the shock, at its head and at its point.

WATER is an adequate source of the hydrogen needed in the growth of all agricultural plants. In fact, this liquid is nature's almost universal solvent, and carries in solution the various essential elements of plant food derived from the soil. Water, together with the salts of potash, phosphoric acid, nitrogen, lime, etc., which are dissolved in it, are taken up by the roots of plants, and passing through the stems to the leaves, are there changed under the action of the sunlight, into substances fitted to build up the structure of the plant. Water not only furnishes the hydrogen, so essential to plant growth, but is the vehicle in which the other food elements are moved from place to place, both before and after the process of assimilation has taken place in the green cells of the leaves. The importance of this liquid is fully appreciated by the gardener, who waters his tender house plants at frequent intervals, and by the farmer, who knows that a withholding of rain for a season means ruin to his crops. Hydrogen, though the lightest of elements, has a weighty place to fill in the plant economy of the farm and garden.—American Agriculturist.

BEE-KEEPING is one of the industries which Americans have neglected because its profits are comparatively small and steady. It is a risky business by which a man can jump into a great success or great failure that is popular. There are a few large beekeepers in the country whose honey is found in all the home markets, and is exported to England; but the great supply comes from the matter than they have hitherto done.

In old times every garden in town and been added. country had its hive, which was usually allowed to stand uncleaned and unattended until the bees died of cold or foul air. Beekeeping requires little work compared with any other occupation, but that work must be thoroughly and faithfully performed at regular seasons. A lad or active woman can take care of one hundred colonies, but they will require hard and constant work throughout the three Summer months, and there must be no shirking. The profits of a single hive of healthy Italian bees average from fifteen to twenty dollars in the first year, and in the increase of another hive. It is not too sanguine reckoning therefore, to set down $1,500 in a very good season as the clear gain from 100 colonies, which, for the labor of one or two persons for three months of the year is at least a fair profit on the outlay. The large bee-keepers usually farm out their colonies; that is, place about twenty on each farm which offers the proper food for them, pay for the attention which they require, and at stated times go about collecting the honey. The supply of fine honey never equals the demand in the markets of large cities, and since the problem was solved of shipping the combs from this port, and landing them in Liverpool unbroken, the supply required for Europe is simply unlimited. Our white clover honey is said to command a higher price in London than the Greek. Here is one of the many industries by which farmers' daughters in this country could earn a comfortable support and remain at home.

NOTE.—The above Diagram illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders, as shown by Chemical Analysis and experiments made by Prof. Schedler. A one pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated in the above diagram. This practical test for worth, by Prof. Schedler, only proves what every observant consumer of Royal Baking Powder knows by experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than the ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, and, besides affords the advantage of better work.

A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair minded person

C ATALOGUE BOOKS AND TRACTS

PUBLISHED BY THE AMERICAN SABBATH TRACT SOCIETY, ALFRED CENTRE, N. Y.

NATURE'S GOD AND HIS MEMORIAL. A Series of Four Sermons on the subject of the Sabbath. By Nathan Wardner, late missionary at Shanghai China, subsequently engaged in Sabbath Reform labors in Scotland. 112 pp. Paper, 15 cents.

THE SABBATH AND THE SUNDAY. By Rev. A. H Lewis, A. M. Part First, Arguments. Part Sec-ond, History. 16mo. 268 pp. Fine Cloth, $1 25.

This volume is an earnest and able presentation of the Sabbath question, argumentatively and historicallight on the subject.

THOUGHTS SUGGESTED BY THE PERUSAL OF GILFIL LAN AND OTHER AUTHORS ON THE BABBATH. By Rev. Thos. B. Brown, Pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist Church at Little Genesee, N. Y. Second Edition, 125 pp. Fine Cloth, 50 cents. Paper, 10

This is in many respects the most able argument yet published. The author was educated in the observance of Sunday, and was for several years a highly esteemed minister in the Baptist denomination. The book is a careful review of the arguments in favor of Sunday, and especially of the work of James Gilfillan, of Scotland, which has been widely circulated among the clergymen of America. Mr. Brown has thoroughly sifted the popular notions relative to Sunday, with great candor, kindness and ability. We especially commend it to those who, like Mr. Brown, have been taught to revere Sunday as the Sabbath.

A DEFENSE OF THE SABBATH, in reply to Ward on the Fourth Commandment. By Geo. Carlow. Third Edition—Revised. 168 pp. 25 cents.

This work was first published in London in 1724. It is valuable as showing the state of the Sabbath argument at that time.

VINDICATION OF THE TRUE SABBATH, in 2 parts. Part First, Narrative of Recent Events. Part Sec one, Divine Appointment of the Seventh Day, by Rev. J. W. Morton, late Missionary of the Reformed Presbyterian Church. 66 pp. Paper, 10

This work is one of decided value, not only as regards the argument adduced, but as showing the extreme want of liberality and fairness which characterized the trial and excommunication of Mr. Morton from the Presbyterian Church.

Paper, 10 cents.

LIFE AND DEATH. By the late Rev. Alexander Campbell, of Bethany, Va. Reprinted from the "Millennial Harbinger Extra." 50 pp. Price, COMMUNION, OR LORD'S SUPPER. A Sermon delivered at Milton Junction, Wis., June 15th, 1878. By Rev. N. Wardner, D. D. 20 pp.

The Society also publishes the following tracts, which will be sold at cost, in large or small quantities, to any who may desire them. Specimen pack ages sent free to any who may wish to examine the Sabbath question. Twenty per cent. discount made to clergymen on any of the above-named books, and a liberal discount to the trade. Other works soon to be published.

We suppose there came to him in this hour of trial the full illumination of the Holy Spirit, the inflowing of the divine light and joy. Looked up steadfastly into heaven. "The implication is he was in some place where the heavens were visible; perhaps in one cf the open courts of the temple, or the court-yard of the high priest's palace." -Lyman Abbott. Not only was there inward illumination, but his eyes beheld pictured in the dome above him "the glory of God, and Jesus standing on the right hand of God." "The scene before his eyes was no longer the council hall at Jerusalem, and the circle of his infuriated judges, but he gazed up into the endless courts of the New Jerusalem, and saw Jesus, in whose righteous cause he was about to die."—Conybeare & Howson.

II. Then they cried. The council, carried away by their rage, became a disorderly mob. No formal sentence of death had been pronounced and submitted to the Roman procurator, without whose sanction the Jews could not inflict capital punishment. "There was no question any longer of a legal decision. In their rage they took the law into their own hands "-Farrar. Cast him out of the city. "According to the Mosaic law, criminals were executed without the gates of their cities. Lev. 24: 14. Thus our Lord suffered without the gate."—Gloag. Stoning was deemed the most severe punishment that could be inflicted. When it was inflicted legally, means were taken whereby suffering was not prolonged; but in this case, either in their haste or malice, the measures were not taken, and so the martyr's life was taken as brutal savages do that of a wild beast. Calling upon God. Where dying men are very apt to call. Sinner and saint, in the moment of dissolution, instinctively look to God. "Dying men do not cling to devotional fancies, or to precarious opinions; the soul, in its last agony, instinctively falls back upon its deepest certainties."-Canon Liddon. And he kneeled down. Like his Master, whom, living and dying, he served, his last thoughts were of forgiveness. The best will and testament of the Christian is that which commends the soul to heaven, the body to earth, friends to divine protection, enemies to the divine compassion."—Starke. He fell asleep.

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep, From which none ever wakes to weep."

III. The death of Stephen was the signal for a It marks a transition period. Henceforth the gospel scattered far and wide in order to yield an abundant harvest. Saul was consenting. Our first introduction to one of the most remarkable men the cruelty, but thought he "was doing God's service." have been pious Jews, not professedly followers of of 15 cents. It is a very readable book. Jesus, but admirers of the brave and eloquent deacon. Made great lamentation. Not only a elty and injustice of the act. Saul made havoe. were scattered. From evil comes good. Saul was an effectual missionary driver with the sword of shadow of its temple courts, the believers of Jesus, and they went everywhere preaching the Word-"all the words of this Life." The gospel, no longer confined to the Jews and Jerusalem, spreads in every direction, among both Jews and Gentiles.

6. Acts 26:1-11.

I. What things had the rulers heard? (Acts 7: 1-53.) What especially offended them? (Acts 7: 51-53.) What is the meaning of "cut to the heart?" Where did Stephen look? What vision was presented to his view? What did he say he saw? What vision was granted to Jacob? (Gen. 28: 11-22.) II. What did the council do when they heard these words of Stephen? Was this a judicial verdict, or the act of a mob? Where was Stephen stoned? Why were witnesses present? (Deut. 17:67.) Who were these witnesses? Who took charge of the garments of those who did the stoning? What did he afterwards become? To whom did Stephe pray in his last hours? What did he ask him to receive? What were his last words? How does this compare with our Saviour's prayer for those who crucified him? (Luke 23:31.) What is his death here called?

III. Who was consenting unto his death? Was he at this time a member of the Sanhedrim? (Acts 26:10.) What befell the church at this time? Who was the chief instrument of this persecution? What effect did it have upon the church? How did this help spread the gospel? To what countries did it extend? (Acts 11: 19.) Does God often make the wrath of men to praisehim? Should we ever carry the truth with us? Who carried Stephen to his burial? What did they make over him? Were these Christians or

COMMENTS.

Connecting events. Our last lesson leaves Stephen arraigned before the Sanhedrim, on the charge of blasphemy. Suborned witnesses had testified that they had "heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses and against God." The Council called on him for his defense. In reply he made a speech, of which Farrar remarks, "it would be difficult in the entire range of literature to find a speech more skillful, more pregnant, more convincing" It was probably delivered in Greek, on the spur of the moment, which fact, together with the additional fact that his quotations were doubtless from the Septuagint of the Old Testament, accounts for the slight inaccuracies in his historical statements. There was no attempt on Stephen's part to flatter or propitiate his judges. He first proceeds with a historical argument, to show that Jesus Christ was the outcome of all Jewish history as the revelation of God. At verse 51, "he seems to have perceived such signs of hostility and menace among his audience as would render it impossible to proceed with his historical argument. He leaves his and application to his hearers."-Peloubet.

OUR SABBATH VISITOR.

It is the desire of the Treasurer of the Sabbath School Board that the Visitor be paid for strictly in advance. So if you want the paper continued please send your subscriptions soon to SABBATH RECORDER office. The number of subscribers ought to be doubled for the coming year. If you want the paper, and can send the money within a few weeks, send your names at once, otherwise your paper will be discontinued.

NATHAN.

A question was asked not long ago, in the RECORDER, about "the boy Nathan." A recent letter from Mrs. Fryer says that he is still at Dr. Farnham's school, but as soon as a school is started by our mission in China, it is proposed to transfer him to that. The cost for one year in the school is twenty-five dollars, which the Sabbath-school at Alfred Centre has paid. It is hoped that our Sabbath-schools will, as soon as our China school is started, adopt and care for such children and thus prepare the way for much good in

WE live in an age of progress. Nothing is now done as it was in our grandfathers days, and in no department is this more noticeable than in agriculture. Varieties of grains, potatoes, and seeds that were formerly planted have now been superseded by others and more desirable sorts. Messrs. B. K. Bliss & Sons, Seedsmen, of New York City, offer in their illustrated Novelty List (free) a very attractive list of Cereals, Vegetables, Flowers, etc. This firm is one of the oldest and most reliable in the trade, so history, and makes a most earnest and direct appeal | that the mere recommendation by them of an article is a sufficient guarantee of its desirability. We also I. When they heard these things, es pecially the charge made in Acts 51: 2, 3. Cut to the heart. A figurative expression for being the heart. MEYER'S COMMENTARY ON AC Criticas.—Aal and Exegetical Handbook to the Acts of the Apostles. By H. A. W. Meyer, Th. D. Translated from the Fourth Edition of the German by Rev. Panton J. Gloag, D. D. The translation revised and edited by Wm. P. Dickson, D. D., Glasgow, with preface, index and supplementary notes to the American edition, by Rev. Wm. Ormiston, D. D., LL.D. New York. Large octavo, 544 pages. Cloth, $2 50. Funk & Wagnalls, publishers, 10 and 12 Dey Street, New York. Dr. Ormiston, in his preface, says his work consists, first "In transferring from the page to foot-notes most of the exceedingly numerous references to authorities. These notes are indicated by small numerals, on each page. It is thought that thus the book will be better suited for the general reader, while the scholarly student can still avail himself of all the references he may desire." Second. 'In appending a number of supplentary notes to each chapter. These notes have been written and selected for the purpose of expanding and confirming, and in some instances, of modifying and correcting the statements of the author.

The notes by Dr. Ormiston add nearly one-fourth new matter to the book. Average Sabbath-school teachers can afford to have it, and will scarcely find anything more helpful in their study and teaching of the now current lessons. While as a book to keep in one's library and for use by the most learned and critical student, it can hardly be surpassed.
